President's Winding Up Ireland Trip

Accorded Galway's Top Honor; Next Stop To Be London

GALWAY, Ireland (AP)—President Kennedy arrived in Galway today on the last leg of his Irish tour and was accorded the freedom of the city as thousands cheered.

Kennedy flew by helicopter from Dublin to Galway's sports grounds and then motored downtown to Eyre Square for an outdoor ceremonial full of informality and enthusiasm.

Kennedy wound up a triumphal three-day tour of his ancestral land with a quick swing around the rugged west of Ireland before heading for a quiet reception in southern England and talks with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Bareheaded as usual and radiating energy, the smiling, waving President grew solemn as he signed the scroll according him Galway's highest honor—the freedom of the city.

City officials extolled Kennedy as a third-generation Irishman who came back home. They spoke in Gaelic and English with the emphasis on the Irish tongue. It flourishes more in the west coast area of Ireland than in the Dublin capital.

Once a great medieval port, Galway has contributed thousands of emigrants to the United States, which Kennedy said now has 25 million citizens of Irish blood.

The Irish never had such a visitor, the great grandson of a poor emigrant who made good in most staggering fashion. The torrent of acclamation has kept Kennedy's Secret Service guards ever on the hop-from homespun get-togethers like the family party at his Dunganstown ancestral home to the glitter of ceremonies in Dublin Castle and Ireland's Parliament.

Kennedy issued a resounding pledge in the Irish Parliament Friday in support of a proposal Ireland first sponsored in the Loan Cleared On City's New Lighting Plan

Just in case the borrowing power is needed, Council enacted legislation Friday night authorizing the city to issue up to $1,300 in notes to pay the first charges from the Ohio Power Co. on a new fluorescent street lighting system in the downtown area.

Before the ordinance was enacted, Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper told Council it was regarded as a precaution to assure that funds would be available, but he said he doubts that the city will be required to borrow money.

The system is scheduled to be financed by special assessments against business district property.

The program was initiated by the East Liverpool Merchants Association, which circulated the petitions in which owners of business property agreed to pay an assessment representing the difference in cost between the present system and the new fixtures.

One of the last steps before work begins on the installation, Safety-Service Director Robert Owen is scheduled to open sealed bids Tuesday noon at his office in City Hall. Although Ohio Power is the only concern which could submit an offer, state law requires the city ot go through with the formality of calling for sealed bids.

Cooper told Council the first two billings from Ohio Power for the new lights are expected in November and December. By that time, the city anticipates that enough will have been paid in on the assessments to cover the bills, the solicitor said.

In the unlikely event that the funds have not been received when the first bills arrive, the city government will be able to borrow $1,300 against the collection of the assessments, he pointed out.

Plans for the new street lighting system, initiated by the merchants, date back several years. About a year ago, ELMA presented its petitions to Council agreeing to the assessment.

Earlier enabling legislation for the program was passed Oct. 29, 1962, and last April 15.

Both Houses Recess Until July 10

Ohio Assembly Approved Most Of Rhodes' Promises

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's 105th General Assembly called a halt to its working sessions, but will return to the statehouse in 11 days to clean up odds and ends and decide upon formal adjournment.

After 25-weeks of work during which the Republican-controlled assembly approved most of GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes' campaign promises, both houses recessed Friday until July 10. At that time the legislators will decide whether to take final adjournment or just take a summer vacation and return next fall.

A special session is almost a certainty if a $250 million bond issue is approved by voters next Nov. 5. The bond issue would provide more buildings for state universities and public schools and facilities for water impoundment and recreation. Legislation would be needed to put the issue into effect.

Highlighting the 105th session was the close adherence to Rhodes' austerity program. State projects were not expanded, nor were taxes increased or initiated.

The legislature did defeat two administration - backed programs — a fair-housing bill and one to permit Ohio to participate in the federally - financed program to give financial aid to children of the unemployed.

Among measures in the administration program adopted by the legislature were bills to:

Create a State Department of Development to attract industry and 200,000 new jobs to Ohio.

Establish golden-age villages, with revenue bond financing, to take the non-psychotic aged out of state hospitals.

Create a youth commission to handle most of the problems of juvenile delinquency.

Establish a three-member Liquor Commission to replace the traditional bi-partisan four-member liquor control board.

Require all able-bodied relief recipients to work for their checks.

Establish a board of state regents to call the signals for higher education in Ohio and supervise Ohio's five tax-supported universities and one state college.

Abolish a flock of advisory boards to state departments no longer considered necessary.

Some observers take the view that the 105th General Assembly is more remarkable for what it didn't do.

The legislature did not:

Adopt any legislation to replace the controversial Sunday closing laws now on the books, now considered unenforceable by local officials.

Do anything in the field of fair housing, an issue which resulted in a half-dozen sit-ins, lie-ins, chain-ins and the like in the capitol.

Adopt a resolution calling for a U.S. Constitutional amendment to prohibit federal courts from considering matters involved apportionment in state legislatures.

The legislature did not even receive a much-talked-about bill which, it was reported, would have removed some 20,000 state employes from civil service protection. Democrats said the so-called "ripper" bill died aborning because of "great public pressure."

Early in the session, Ohio joined the parade of states ratifying a U. S. Constitutional amend-

For St. Clair Project

Council Ratifies $10 Assessment

A State Highway Department project for rebuilding St. Clair Ave. into a 36-foot concrete highway from Princeton Ave. to the north city limits moved a step nearer reality Friday night when City Council approved, 6-1, a resolution officially placing a $10-a-foot assessment against owners of abutting property to help pay the municipality's share.

The second enabling legislation enacted for the project, the resolution also gave Council's approval to plans for the project, cleared earlier by the state and the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, which is sharing the cost.

ALTHOUGH THE Highway Department indicated early this year it would let a contract for the project in May or June, no action has been taken. Councilmen indicated last night the contract now is expected to be let around Sept. 1, although no official word has been received.

In voting the $10 assessment, Council ratified a decision which it made informally last August. At that time, petitions were presented representing more than 51 per cent of the abutting property in which the owners agreed to the charge.

In a caucus that preceded the special meeting last night, Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper told Council the cost of the job now is estimated as high as $600,000, compared with the $400,000 mentioned earlier.

But, he cautioned, the cost will not be definite until the state opens bids and awards contracts.

IF THE COST goes as high as $600,000, the city's 50 per cent share will total $300,000, Cooper pointed out. However, the assessment against the property - owners will produce an estimated $147,000, the solicitor said. That would leave $152,500 to be raised out of city funds.

The city also is scheduled to receive credit toward its share for the $13,000 it spent in engineering fees for the Youngstown firm which prepared detailed plans for the project, Cooper said. That would cut to about $139,500 the amount the city actually would have to raise.

The property - owners' share will be unchanged regardless he, emphasized.

The plans call for a 36-foot, three-lane highway of reinforced concrete, complete with curbs and a full storm drainage system.

Councilman Frank Duffy cast the lone dissenting vote, aftermath of a brief debate on the legislation.

THE RESOLUTION was supported by Councilmen Robert W. Sample Jr., Kenneth C. Berg, George E. Willshaw, Edward Massey, S. James Welch and Floyd Murray.

In opposing the legislation, Duffy said the city first talked in terms of $400,000 for the project, but the guess on the cost now has been raised to $600,000.

After President's Return

Ambassadorial Changes May Be Announced Soon

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. ambassadorial changes in a number of important posts from Europe to Southern Asia are expected to be announced in the weeks following President Kennedy's return from Europe.

The switches in prospect involve a number of resignations. Still, officials pointed out that diplomatic assignments are regularly rotated and some of the envoys appointed during the first year of the Kennedy administration are now up for reassignment after two years in their overseas posts.

Administration sources gave these among the changes in the offing:

Charles W. Yost, a deputy representative to the United Nations under Adlai E. Stevenson, to become ambassador to Yugoslavia. A career diplomat, Yost would succeed George F. Kennan, who is returning to the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J.

Career diplomat Henry A. Byroade, a senior adviser with the U.S. Disarmament Agency, to be ambassador to Burma. He would succeed John S. Everton, former Ford Foundation official, who is resigning after having been at Rangoon since 1961.

William Attwood, a former newsman who has been ambassador to Guinea since 1961, to succeed Ben S. Stephansky as U.S. envoy to Bolivia. Stephansky, a former labor specialist, is in line for a high ranking job in the State Department's Inter-American Affairs Bureau in Washington.

Delesseps S. Morrison, U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, is expected to resign this summer. A former New Orleans mayor, he is expected to run for the Louisiana governorship.

G. Frederick Reinhardt, career diplomat who has been U.S. ambassador to Italy since 1961, is ill and a replacement is being sought.

Thomas C. Mann, ambassador to Mexico since 1961, is reported considering resigning in the near future. He was a Texas lawyer before entering the foreign service in 1942.

Tax Question Certified To Voting Board

Action By Applegate Follows Orders Of Court In Law Suit

Complying with a court order that climaxed a long legal battle, City Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate Friday afternoon certified to the County Election Board the documents formally clearing the way for a vote on the city income tax question at the Nov. 5 general election.

Although the 7th District Court of Appeals ruled early in May that the tax question must be certified for a vote, Applegate could not act until he had been served officially with a copy of the court's journal entry. He acted a few hours after receiving the writ, served upon him by a county deputy sheriff.

Applegate turned over the question about 3:30 yesterday afternoon to Frank R. O'Hanlon, Election Board clerk. In a letter that accompanied the documents, he explained he was complying with a court order in taking the action.

The chain of events in the case dates back to August 1962, when Trades and Labor Council filed with the auditor petitions proposing an initiative ordinance to repeal tax legislation enacted by Council earlier in the year.

Acting upon an opinion issued by Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper, the

Police Expect Break In Slugging Robbery

Police Capt. Robert H. Pyle, acting police chief, said today there may be a break over the weekend in the search for a strongarm robber who slugged a waitress in a Dresden Ave. tavern Thursday afternoon and then fled with between $120 and $135 from the cash register.

Police are searching for a suspect in the holdup of Mrs. Thelma Hayes, a waitress at Roys Bar, 755 Dresden Ave., Capt. Pyle said. She suffered a cut under the left eye in the attack.

Posing as a patron, the robber ordered a drink about noon Thursday, waited until other patrons had left and then walked behind the bar and struck her in the face, knocking her to the floor.

SAFETY'S THE KEY IN '63

A city woman was killed when her car was struck broadside by a tractor-trailer truck on Route 7 a mile and three-tenths south of Route 14, near Middleton, Friday afternoon at 2.

Fatally injured was Mrs. Eugenia May Barnhouse, 42, of 329 W. 9th St., according to the Ohio State Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

Mrs. Barnhouse was pronounced dead on arrival at Salem City Hospital with a fractured neck, skull fracture and internal injuries. She was alone in the car.

Officers said Mrs. Barnhouse was headed west on County Rd. 421 and pulled onto Route 7 into the path of the southbound semi-tractor-trailer rig operated by Joseph A. McNeil, 38, of Lincoln Park, Mich.

The trucker escaped injury. The car, which was knocked down the highway, was nearly demolished, officers said.

This marks the 12th traffic fatality in Columbiana County this year, compared with 17 for the corresponding period in 1962.

7 Killed, 25 Hurt As Bus Hits 2 Autos

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)— A bus with 31 persons aboard skidded early today, jumped the center island and smashed into two autos. Seven persons were killed and 25 injured, four critically.

The scene of the crash, 10 miles west of New York City, was a mass of wreckage, bodies, and parts of bodies. Police said two of the dead were in one of the cars and five were passengers on the bus, but they had only four positive identifications.

Police identified four of the dead bus passengers as Miss Leonora Lerner, 24, of Rutherford; Anthony J. Vertullo, 57, of Clifton; Joseph A. Caputo, 73, of Rutherford, and Joseph J. Domino, of Pompton Plains, a sailor.

The two killed in the car were John F. Cardiello and Mrs. Eleanor Marie Roche both of Jersey City. Cardiello's wife, Betty, was in poor condition at Hackensack Hospital, and Mrs. Roche's husband, Richard, was critical.

One of the bus victims—police were unsure which one — was alive when thrown from the bus. But he landed in the roadway where a panel truck hit him and dragged him a quarter of a mile.

The accident occurred several hundred yards east of a New Jersey drive-in theater on Berry's Creek Bridge, where the highway rises sharply over an underpass entrance to the movie.

It happened just after the Inter-City Transportation Co. bus crested the hill and started down. The wreckage of the bus lay at the foot of the hill, most of it on the six foot wide, center island, which is only a few inches high.

Fire At Signal Farm Razes 2 Dwellings

Milkshed And Small Car Also Destroyed Early This Morning

LISBON — Fire of unknown origin destroyed two homes, a milkhouse and a small imported car early this morning at the Woodburn Farm, southwest of Signal.

Rogers Volunteer firemen were called at 2 a. m. and required assistance of Lisbon and Negley firemen in fighting the spreading blaze.

Fog and smoke hampered firemen and a fire truck broke through a small bridge over a creek in a lane leading off the main road and Lisbon and Negley equipment could not cross but the departments were able to get water to the Roger pumper.

One house, the former Fairmont School, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Brady Thompson and the other, about 150 feet away, was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Woodburn, son of Mrs. Thompson. The Woodburns were not at home at the time.

Firemen said that because of the heavy fog and smoke, it was

8 Drown, Two Are Saved In Dixie Mishap

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — "They were begging us to get them out," said a rescuer after desperate efforts saved only two of 10 persons whose car plunged into turgid flood waters.

"I kept yelling for them to throw the children out of the car into the river," said Lamar Thaxton. "But I guess it's pretty hard to throw children into a river."

The car carried an elderly couple, seven of their grandchildren and another woman into the swirling current of the rain-swollen Oconee River near the University of Georgia Friday.

Six of the children, the invalid grandfather and the third adult drowned.

Thaxton, of Athens, saw the car lurch into the normally placid river near a bridge. "I heard them screaming, and I jumped off the bridge," he said.

Ten-year-old Jerry Green clung to the top of the car as it spun about and sank. Then he popped to the surface, and Thaxton hauled him to shore.

Mrs. J. L. Barnett, the driver, managed to escape and was pulled to safety.

The dead were identified as J. L. Barnett, a 66-year-old jus-

Motorist Arrested

'Sleeper' In Boat Causes Firemen, Police Trouble

An emergency run to the Ohio River Friday afternoon turned out to be a "sleeper" for city firemen but as an aftermath police listed a theft and two accidents in one of which a Newell motorist was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

Firemen were called at 3:35 p. m. about a motorboat drifting in the Ohio River near Babb's Island.

Fearing the operator may have fallen overboard or had become ill, Asst. Fire Chief Alfred Van Dyne and Firemen Ralph Wood hurried to the River Rd. in the chief's car, planning to use Van Dyne's boat moored at the foot of Walnut St.

But Van Dyne found a thief had stolen the propeller from his 75-horsepower outboard motor. The theft occurred after 10 p.m. Thursday, the assistant chief later reported to police.

Van Dyne immediately radioed to Central Station and the emergency truck and boat were dispatched.

Georgia L. Fitch, 48, of Dixonville was heading south on Broadway at E. Church Ln. at 3:45 p.m. when the emergency truck approached with its siren on and red light flashing.

The woman said she pulled to the right to give the emergency equipment the right-of-way and struck the parked car of Stanley Wilson, 728 Avondale St.

The mishap damaged the right door and fender of the woman's 1960 sedan but there was no apparent damage to Wilson's auto, police said.

Action By Applegate Follows Orders Of Court In Law Suit

Complying with a court order that climaxed a long legal battle, City Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate Friday afternoon certified to the County Election Board the documents formally clearing the way for a vote on the city income tax question at the Nov. 5 general election.

Although the 7th District Court of Appeals ruled early in May that the tax question must be certified for a vote, Applegate could not act until he had been served officially with a copy of the court's journal entry. He acted a few hours after receiving the writ, served upon him by a county deputy sheriff.

Applegate turned over the question about 3:30 yesterday afternoon to Frank R. O'Hanlon, Election Board clerk. In a letter that accompanied the documents, he explained he was complying with a court order in taking the action.

The chain of events in the case dates back to August 1962, when Trades and Labor Council filed with the auditor petitions proposing an initiative ordinance to repeal tax legislation enacted by Council earlier in the year.

Police Expect Break In Slugging Robbery

Police Capt. Robert H. Pyle, acting police chief, said today there may be a break over the weekend in the search for a strongarm robber who slugged a waitress in a Dresden Ave. tavern Thursday afternoon and then fled with between $120 and $135 from the cash register.

Police are searching for a suspect in the holdup of Mrs. Thelma Hayes, a waitress at Roy's Bar, 755 Dresden Ave., Capt. Pyle said. She suffered a cut under the left eye in the attack.

Posing as a patron, the robber ordered a drink about noon Thursday, waited until other patrons had left and then walked behind the bar and struck her in the face, knocking her to the floor.

SAFETY'S THE KEY IN '63

A city woman was killed when her car was struck broadside by a tractor-trailer truck on Route 7 a mile and three-tenths south of Route 14, near Middleton, Friday afternoon at 2.

Fatally injured was Mrs. Eugenia May Barnhouse, 42, of 329 W. 9th St., according to the Ohio State Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

Mrs. Barnhouse was pronounced dead on arrival at Salem City Hospital with a fractured neck, skull fracture and internal injuries. She was alone in the car.

Officers said Mrs. Barnhouse was headed west on County Rd. 421 and pulled onto Route 7 into the path of the southbound semi-tractor-trailer rig operated by Joseph A. McNeil, 38, of Lincoln Park, Mich.

The trucker escaped injury. The car, which was knocked down the highway, was nearly demolished, officers said.

This marks the 12th traffic fatality in Columbiana County this year, compared with 17 for the corresponding period in 1962.

Mrs. Barnhouse was born in

7 Killed, 25 Hurt As Bus Hits 2 Autos

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)— A bus with 31 persons aboard skidded early today, jumped the center island and smashed into two autos. Seven persons were killed and 25 injured, four critically.

The scene of the crash, 10 miles west of New York City, was a mass of wreckage, bodies, and parts of bodies. Police said two of the dead were in one of the cars and five were passengers on the bus, but they had only four positive identifications.

Police identified four of the dead bus passengers as Miss Leonora Lerner, 24, of Rutherford; Anthony J. Vertullo, 57, of Clifton; Joseph A. Caputo, 73, of Rutherford, and Joseph J. Domino, of Pompton Plains, a sailor.

The two killed in the car were John F. Cardiello and Mrs. Eleanor Marie Roche both of Jersey City. Cardiello's wife, Betty, was in poor condition at Hackensack Hospital, and Mrs. Roche's husband, Richard, was critical.

One of the bus victims—police were unsure which one — was alive when thrown from the bus. But he landed in the roadway where a panel truck hit him and dragged him a quarter of a mile.

The accident occurred several hundred yards east of a New Jersey drive-in theater on Berry's Creek Bridge, where the highway rises sharply over an underpass entrance to the movie.

It happened just after the Inter-City Transportation Co. bus crested the hill and started down. The wreckage of the bus lay at the foot of the hill, most of it on the six foot wide, center island, which is only a few inches high.

Fire At Signal Farm Razes 2 Dwellings

Milkshed And Small Car Also Destroyed Early This Morning

LISBON — Fire of unknown origin destroyed two homes, a milkhouse and a small imported car early this morning at the Woodburn Farm, southwest of Signal.

Rogers Volunteer firemen were called at 2 a. m. and required assistance of Lisbon and Negley firemen in fighting the spreading blaze.

Fog and smoke hampered firemen and a fire truck broke through a small bridge over a creek in a lane leading off the main road and Lisbon and Negley equipment could not cross but the departments were able to get water to the Roger pumper.

One house, the former Fairmont School, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Brady Thompson and the other, about 150 feet away, was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Woodburn, son of Mrs. Thompson. The Woodburns were not at home at the time.

Firemen said that because of the heavy fog and smoke, it was

8 Drown, Two Are Saved In Dixie Mishap

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — "They were begging us to get them out," said a rescuer after desperate efforts saved only two of 10 persons whose car plunged into turgid flood waters.

"I kept yelling for them to throw the children out of the car into the river," said Lamar Thaxton. "But I guess it's pretty hard to throw children into a river."

The car carried an elderly couple, seven of their grandchildren and another woman into the swirling current of the rain-swollen Oconee River near the University of Georgia Friday.

Six of the children, the invalid grandfather and the third adult drowned.

Thaxton, of Athens, saw the car lurch into the normally placid river near a bridge. "I heard them screaming, and I jumped off the bridge," he said.

Ten-year-old Jerry Green clung to the top of the car as it spun about and sank. Then he popped to the surface, and Thaxton hauled him to shore.

Mrs. J. L. Barnett, the driver, managed to escape and was pulled to safety.

The dead were identified as J. L. Barnett, a 66-year-old jus-

'Slots' Owner Faces Grand Jury Action

$1,000 Bond Set For Hancock Man On Gaming Charges

NEW CUMBERLAND — Acting after lengthy study of testimony and evidence, Squire John S. Bryan today held a local resident for Grand Jury action on a charge of illegal possession of gaming devices.

Benny Phillips, owner of the New Cumberland Vending Co., was bound over under $1,000 bond for the September term of court.

The charge was filed by Constable Patsy Cortez of Weirton June 16 and the warrant was executed by Trooper J. N. Morrison of West Virginia State Police.

Cortez acted after Anthony Leon of Weirton had obtained a search and seizure warrant to allow the constable to enter a warehouse owned by Phillips.

Officers impounded 55 slot machines in the building here. They are being held at State Police headquarters in Weirton.

A preliminary hearing for Phillips was held Tuesday night in Bryan's office, and testimony was given by Cortez, Trooper Morrison, Leon and James Hanna. The

Motorist Arrested

'Sleeper' In Boat Causes Firemen, Police Trouble

An emergency run to the Ohio River Friday afternoon turned out to be a "sleeper" for city firemen but as an aftermath police listed a theft and two accidents in one of which a Newell motorist was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

Firemen were called at 3:35 p. m. about a motorboat drifting in the Ohio River near Babb's Island.

Fearing the operator may have fallen overboard or had become ill, Asst. Fire Chief Alfred Van Dyne and Firemen Ralph Wood hurried to the River Rd. in the chief's car, planning to use Van Dyne's boat moored at the foot of Walnut St.

But Van Dyne found a thief had stolen the propeller from his 75-horsepower outboard motor. The theft occurred after 10 p.m. Thursday, the assistant chief later reported to police.

Van Dyne immediately radioed to Central Station and the emergency truck and boat were dispatched.

Georgia L. Fitch, 48, of Dixonville was heading south on Broadway at E. Church Ln. at 3:45 p.m. when the emergency truck approached with its siren on and red light flashing.

The woman said she pulled to the right to give the emergency equipment the right-of-way and struck the parked car of Stanley Wilson, 728 Avondale St.

The mishap damaged the right door and fender of the woman's 1960 sedan but there was no apparent damage to Wilson's auto, police said.

No One Hurt In Series Of City Mishaps

A series of five traffic accidents Friday and early today, two of them hit-run cases, resulted in considerable property damage but no injuries, police reported.

The series began at 9:34 a.m. yesterday involving an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. truck and a dump truck on the River Rd.

Donald K. Featherstone, 34, of 1813 Idaho Ave., driver of the telephone truck, said he pulled from a parking lot onto the highway and didn't see the approaching dump truck operated by John T. Tate, 37, of New Cumberland R.D. 2. Tate told police he applied his brakes and blew his horn but was unable to avoid striking the phone truck.

The only damage was to the right front bumper of the telephone truck, police said.

A 1963 sedan of a Calcutta woman was heavily damaged when she skidded on the wet pavement on Park Way near the entrance to Thompson Park to avoid a county-owned dump truck.

Ruth E. Whittington, 44, said she was headed north when the dump truck operated by William Duke, 59, of Sub-Station Rd. cut across the road in front of her.

She said she applied her brakes but the car skidded on the wet pavement and slid into an embankment.

Duke told officers he was headed south and had turned on his directional signal for a right turn. After crossing the highway and pulling into the berm, Duke said he saw the other car approaching. The woman applied her brakes but the car made a complete turn and skidded into the embankment on his right side, Duke explained.

Three cars were damaged in a crash at 2:38 p.m. at Walnut St. and Dry Alley.

The mishap involved a car owned by M. & A. Motors, 625 Broadway, and operated by Robert L. Heiney, 17, of Glenmoor, a 1956 sedan driven by Harold R. Howard, 63, of 637 Hill Blvd., and a parked station wagon owned by Harry S. Huff, 600 4th St., Chester.

Heiney said he was headed north on Walnut St. when Howard pulled out of Dry Alley and struck his car and shoved it into the Huff station wagon. Howard told police he didn't see any approaching traffic when he pulled out of the alley.

The crash damaged the left side, fender and bumper and right door and fender of the 1959 sedan driven by Heiney and the right front fender and bumper of Howard's car. A door and chrome strip on the station wagon were dented.

Curtis Vernon Akers, 21, of 813 Lincoln Ave. was turning onto Mulberry St. from Pennsylvania Ave. at 11:15 p.m. Friday when an unidentified motorist pulled out of Mulberry St. and struck him.

Both drivers got out of their cars and Akers started for a phone to call police when the other motorist got in and drove away.

Neighbors obtained the license number of the other car and gave it to police. The witnesses were identified by police as Patricia Humphrey, 959 Pennsylvania Ave., and Mildred Mercer, 995 Monaca St.

Akers was driving a 1956 car owned by Harry Cunningham, 1722 Jennings Ave., police said. It was damaged on the left rear fender.

A Wellsville motorist told police at 3:30 a.m. today that his car was struck by a hit-skip driver on W. 8th St. near Oak Alley.

Angelo Louis Cianni, 25, of 531 Wells Hollow Rd., said he was headed east at 35 miles an hour when his 1955 sedan was struck on the left front and dragged over a curb for about 15 feet.

The other motorist was driving a 1955 or 1956 red and white Buick, he said.

The right wheels and the left front fender and bumper of Cianni's car were damaged, police said.

auditor ruled the petitions were "insufficient" and he could not certify the question to the Election Board. The law makes it the auditor's duty to determine if such petitions meet legal requirements.

Trades Council then filed action in Common Pleas Court at Lisbon to compel the auditor to certify the question for a vote. It was sustained by Judge Raymond S. Buzzard. Then the city carried the case to the appellate court.

The district court heard the case early in April, but did not issue its finding unitl May. When the auditor received the copy of the court's journal entry, it cleared the way for him to certify the question to the Election Board and set the stage for another vote on the tax issue.

As part of its ruling, the appellate court had said the petitions still were "live," despite the long litigation and the fact that they originally sought a vote on the tax at the November 1962 general election.

squire delayed a decision until today.

Squire Bryan said that after much study of the case, he found certain technicalities and questions of law that "can best be determined by a higher court."

He added there has arisen in the case a question of whether the slot machines are covered by federal gambling stamps. If not, that would constitute a separate charge as the stamps are required whether the machines are in use or not, he said.

Phillips' defense attorney argued Tuesday that the owner of the machines cannot be prosecuted because the equipment was not available for the public, and the arresting officers have no knowledge of any use of the same by the public. Two doors were forced to gain entrance to the warehouse.

a two-lane pavement," Duffy said. "Some of them can't afford a $10 assessment. There are widows living out there and people who have been laid off from work.

"This will cost the city a pretty penny," Duffy added. "The people on St. Clair don't want a three-lane road. It's the people in other parts of town. I'm voting 'no' on this."

Then Willshaw replied, touching off an exchange in which both he and Duffy talked at once.

"DOES MR. DUFFY know that the majority of the property-owners want it?" Willshaw asked. "They sent a petition to Council agreeing to the assessment."

"If the people want a two-lane road, the federal government won't go along with it," Sample said. He cited an earlier ruling in which the federal government said it would not participate in the cost of a pavement narrower than 36 feet.

"If the federal government doesn't help, the people would pay more for a two-lane road than the three-lane highway will cost them," Sample added.

Then Welch took the floor in support of the legislation.

"At present, we have a dust problem because of the wide unimproved berm and we also have a severe drainage problem," he said. "There's no use in building a two-lane road; we would have the same problems we have at present.

"WE HAVE HAD complaints of children and other pedestrians being splashed with water because the storm drainage system is almost non-existent. I feel it would be unwise to consider a two-lane road if the federal government won't participate."

"Several people are opposed to a 36-foot street and I can see their point," Berg commented. "But I voted for it before and I will vote for it again. It has been estimated the property - owners would pay an assessment of $23 or $24 a foot for a two-lane street without federal aid. I placed myself in the position of the people who live out there and I feel a 36-foot street is a good deal for $10 a foot."

"I think we're getting a real bargain," Massey said. "We talked in terms of $400,000, but we realized at the time the cost might be more. If it's $600,000 and the federal government pays half and the proprety-owners pay $10-a-foot, I still think we're getting a bargain."

"WE HAVE TO LOOK to the future," Massey said. He pointed out the majority of the St. Clair Ave. property was represented in the petition agreeing to the assessment.

"I thought we had this all threshed out," Murray said, referring to Council's earlier agreement on the assessment. "I feel we're getting a three-lane street cheaper than we would get a two-lane street. There's no road at all out there now," he said, referring to the badly broken condition of St. Clair's blacktop surface.

"The project will save the city the $5,000 to $10,000 a year it spends now on maintenance of St. Clair," Massey said.

Then the vote was taken and the ordinance passed.

Sample then remarked that enactment of the legislation does not mean that the work will begin immediately. He said several St. Clair residents have asked him when the project will begin.

ONE OF THE time - consuming details required by law is that formal notices of assessment must be served personally on all owners of abutting property, Sample remarked.

"That will take a little while," he added.

8 With BUC Staff Here Get Past-Due Pay

Eight employes of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation received their pay Friday for the last half of June, despite indications their pay for this week would be delayed for lack of federal funds.

Harry L. Dinsmore, manager, said the eight employes of the Washington St. office received two payments yesterday after working voluntarily this week.

The eight were among some 3,000 furloughed on June 21 by BUC Administrator Willard P. Dudley for a lack of federal funds to meet salaries. Dudley said employes could volunteer to work with the understanding they would be paid if Congress passes a deficiency appropriation.

The funds to be distributed to the states to help pay salaries were exhausted before the end of the fiscal year. A new fiscal year starts Monday.

Meanwhile, claims for unemployment compensation this month dropped to 1,308 compared to 1,490 in May, Dinsmore said. The claims included 195 new and 1,113 continued.

This week's claims had increased to 312 compared to 298 processed for the week ending June 21, he reported. They included 55 new and 257 continued.

The office received 749 applications for work this month compared to 760 in May, Dinsmore said, and placed 53 people one less than last month.

The placements included two handicapped persons this month and one in May.

Benefit payments distributed through the East Liverpool office in May totaled $29,152, boosting the total for the first five months of the year to $276,489. The total includes $32,394 for dependency allowances.

Dinsmore reminded claimants the office will be closed Thursday for the holiday. Regular claimants should report Wednesday, he said.

No One Hurt In Series Of City Mishaps

A series of five traffic accidents Friday and early today, two of them hit-run cases, resulted in considerable property damage but no injuries, police reported.

The series began at 9:34 a.m. yesterday involving an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. truck and a dump truck on the River Rd.

Donald K. Featherstone, 34, of 1813 Idaho Ave., driver of the telephone truck, said he pulled from a parking lot onto the highway and didn't see the approaching dump truck operated by John T. Tate, 37, of New Cumberland R.D. 2. Tate told police he applied his brakes and blew his horn but was unable to avoid striking the phone truck.

The only damage was to the right front bumper of the telephone truck, police said.

A 1963 sedan of a Calcutta woman was heavily damaged when she skidded on the wet pavement on Park Way near the entrance to Thompson Park to avoid a county-owned dump truck.

Ruth E. Whittington, 44, said she was headed north when the dump truck operated by William Duke, 59, of Sub-Station Rd. cut across the road in front of her.

She said she applied her brakes but the car skidded on the wet pavement and slid into an embankment.

Duke told officers he was headed south and had turned on his directional signal for a right turn. After crossing the highway and pulling into the berm, Duke said he saw the other car approaching. The woman applied her brakes but the car made a complete turn and skidded into the embankment on his right side, Duke explained.

Three cars were damaged in a crash at 2:38 p.m. at Walnut St. and Dry Alley.

The mishap involved a car owned by M. & A. Motors, 625 Broadway, and operated by Robert L. Heiney, 17, of Glenmoor, a 1956 sedan driven by Harold R. Howard, 63, of 637 Hill Blvd., and a parked station wagon owned by Harry S. Huff, 600 4th St., Chester.

Heiney said he was headed north on Walnut St. when Howard pulled out of Dry Alley and struck his car and shoved it into the Huff station wagon. Howard told police he didn't see any approaching traffic when he pulled out of the alley.

The crash damaged the left side, fender and bumper and right door and fender of the 1959 sedan driven by Heiney and the right front fender and bumper of Howard's car. A door and chrome strip on the station wagon were dented.

Curtis Vernon Akers, 21, of 813 Lincoln Ave. was turning onto Mulberry St. from Pennsylvania Ave. at 11:15 p.m. Friday when an unidentified motorist pulled out of Mulberry St. and struck him.

Both drivers got out of their cars and Akers started for a phone to call police when the other motorist got in and drove away.

Neighbors obtained the license number of the other car and gave it to police. The witnesses were identified by police as Patricia Humphrey, 959 Pennsylvania Ave., and Mildred Mercer, 995 Monaca St.

Akers was driving a 1956 car owned by Harry Cunningham, 1722 Jennings Ave., police said. It was damaged on the left rear fender.

A Wellsville motorist told police at 3:30 a.m. today that his car was struck by a hit-skip driver on W. 8th St. near Oak Alley.

Angelo Louis Cianni, 25, of 531 Wells Hollow Rd., said he was headed east at 35 miles an hour when his 1955 sedan was struck on the left front and dragged over a curb for about 15 feet.

The other motorist was driving a 1955 or 1956 red and white Buick, he said.

The right wheels and the left front fender and bumper of Cianni's car were damaged, police said.

auditor ruled the petitions were "insufficient" and he could not certify the question to the Election Board. The law makes it the auditor's duty to determine if such petitions meet legal requirements.

Trades Council then filed action in Common Pleas Court at Lisbon to compel the auditor to certify the question for a vote. It was sustained by Judge Raymond S. Buzzard. Then the city carried the case to the appellate court.

The district court heard the case early in April, but did not issue its finding until May. When the auditor received the copy of the court's journal entry, it cleared the way for him to certify the question to the Election Board and set the stage for another vote on the tax issue.

As part of its ruling, the appellate court had said the petitions still were "live," despite the long litigation and the fact that they originally sought a vote on the tax at the November 1962 general election.

squire delayed a decision until today.

Squire Bryan said that after much study of the case, he found certain technicalities and questions of law that "can best be determined by a higher court."

He added there has arisen in the case a question of whether the slot machines are covered by federal gambling stamps. If not, that would constitute a separate charge as the stamps are required whether the machines are in use or not, he said.

Phillips' defense attorney argued Tuesday that the owner of the machines cannot be prosecuted because the equipment was not available for the public, and the arresting officers have no knowledge of any use of the same by the public. Two doors were forced to gain entrance to the warehouse.

Bill Advances St. Clair Job

a two-lane pavement," Duffy said. "Some of them can't afford a $10 assessment. There are widows living out there and people who have been laid off from work.

"This will cost the city a pretty penny," Duffy added. "The people on St. Clair don't want a three-lane road. It's the people in other parts of town. I'm voting 'no' on this."

Then Willshaw replied, touching off an exchange in which both he and Duffy talked at once.

"DOES MR. DUFFY know that the majority of the property-owners want it?" Willshaw asked. "They sent a petition to Council agreeing to the assessment."

"If the people want a two-lane road, the federal government won't go along with it," Sample said. He cited an earlier ruling in which the federal government said it would not participate in the cost of a pavement narrower than 36 feet.

"If the federal government doesn't help, the people would pay more for a two-lane road than the three-lane highway will cost them," Sample added.

Then Welch took the floor in support of the legislation.

"At present, we have a dust problem because of the wide unimproved berm and we also have a severe drainage problem," he said. "There's no use in building a two-lane road; we would have the same problems we have at present.

"WE HAVE HAD complaints of children and other pedestrians being splashed with water because the storm drainage system is almost non-existent. I feel it would be unwise to consider a two-lane road if the federal government won't participate."

"Several people are opposed to a 36-foot street and I can see their point," Berg commented. "But I voted for it before and I will vote for it again. It has been estimated the property - owners would pay an assessment of $23 or $24 a foot for a two-lane street without federal aid. I placed myself in the position of the people who live out there and I feel a 36-foot street is a good deal for $10 a foot."

"I think we're getting a real bargain," Massey said. "We talked in terms of $400,000, but we realized at the time the cost might be more. If it's $600,000 and the federal government pays half and the proprety-owners pay $10-a-foot, I still think we're getting a bargain."

"WE HAVE TO LOOK to the future," Massey said. He pointed out the majority of the St. Clair Ave. property was represented in the petition agreeing to the assessment.

"I thought we had this all threshed out," Murray said, referring to Council's earlier agreement on the assessment. "I feel we're getting a three-lane street cheaper than we would get a two-lane street. There's no road at all out there now," he said, referring to the badly broken condition of St. Clair's blacktop surface.

"The project will save the city the $5,000 to $10,000 a year it spends now on maintenance of St. Clair," Massey said.

Then the vote was taken and the ordinance passed.

Sample then remarked that enactment of the legislation does not mean that the work will begin immediately. He said several St. Clair residents have asked him when the project will begin.

—:—

ONE OF THE time - consuming details required by law is that formal notices of assessment must be served personally on all owners of abutting property, Sample remarked.

"That will take a little while," he added.

8 With BUC Staff Here Get Past-Due Pay

Eight employes of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation received their pay Friday for the last half of June, despite indications their pay for this week would be delayed for lack of federal funds.

Harry L. Dinsmore, manager, said the eight employes of the Washington St. office received two payments yesterday after working voluntarily this week.

The eight were among some 3,000 furloughed on June 21 by BUC Administrator Willard P. Dudley for a lack of federal funds to meet salaries. Dudley said employes could volunteer to work with the understanding they would be paid if Congress passes a deficiency appropriation.

The funds to be distributed to the states to help pay salaries were exhausted before the end of the fiscal year. A new fiscal year starts Monday.

Meanwhile, claims for unemployment compensation this month dropped to 1,308 compared to 1,490 in May, Dinsmore said. The claims included 195 new and 1,113 continued.

This week's claims had increased to 312 compared to 298 processed for the week ending June 21, he reported. They included 55 new and 257 continued.

The office received 749 applications for work this month compared to 760 in May, Dinsmore said, and placed 53 people one less than last month.

The placements included two handicapped persons this month and one in May.

Benefit payments distributed through the East Liverpool office in May totaled $29,152, boosting the total for the first five months of the year to $276,489. The total includes $32,394 for dependency allowances.

Dinsmore reminded claimants the office will be closed Thursday for the holiday. Regular claimants should report Wednesday, he said.

Pope Paul's Words Echo Those Of His Predecessor

By JAMES M. LONG

VATICAN CITY (AP) — "We open our arms to all those who glory in the name of Christ. We call them with the sweet name of brothers."

Those words sound like Pope John XXIII. But they were spoken with the younger, vibrant voice of Pope Paul VI.

"Our work, with the aid of God, will be to undertake every effort for the conservation of the great good of peace among peoples."

Those words, too, sound like Pope John. They, too, were spoken by Pope Paul.

Slightly built, intense, ascetic Pope Paul resembles Pope Pius XII. But he expresses thoughts more like Pope John in terms of Christian unity, social reform and justice.

When the conclave of cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church selected Giovannia Battista Montini to succeed Pope John, they knew where he stood.

Two weeks before he left his archbishopric of Milan to attend the conclave, he pledged support of Pope John's Ecumenical Council and his work for peace, even with the Communist countries.

Pope Paul stated this even more plainly in his first address, the day after his election: "The preeminent part of our pontificate will be occupied with the continuation of the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council. This will be the principal work for which we intend to devote all the energies which the Lord gave us so that the Catholic Church . . . can attract all men to it."

Like Pope John, Pope Paul does not think Christian unity will be soon or easily achieved. But he believes the Ecumenical Council can make progress toward that goal.

Some on the extreme left and extreme right had claimed that Pope John, in creating a new atmosphere between the church and countries under Kremlin control, had softened toward Communism.

Pope Paul, too, has spoken of the need for understanding. But during his eight years as archbishop in the Red stronghold of industrial North Italy, his words left no doubt as to his ideas on communism.

Pope Paul is five feet eight inches tall and weighs 150 pounds. His grey hair is sparse. His blue eyes, deep set under heavy black eyebrows, have an intense, almost hypnotic look.

He speaks fluent French and good English in addition to Latin and Italian. He also has considerable knowledge of German and Spanish and knows some Polish.

He eats lightly, seldom sleeps more than six hours a night, and drives himself intensely in his work.

Pope Paul enjoys television. He delights in quiz programs and follows transmissions of bicycle racing. He always has been a bike fan. He also enjoys his large collection of records of classical and religious music. He surrounds himself with books.

Because of his intense energy Pope Paul has been called "The Pope in a hurry."

Mr. K Maps 'Showdown' With Chinese

BERLIN (AP) — Premier Khrushchev turned today from a lukewarm Berlin reception to a major Soviet-bloc summit parley called apparently to consolidate strength for a showdown with the Red Chinese.

The Chinese-Soviet ideological feud broke into the open again, as at least five Communist chieftains responded to Khrushchev's call.

Coinciding with the meeting, the Kremlin published a Khrushchev speech in which the Soviet premier:

1. Acknowledged as noteworthy President Kennedy's call for renewed efforts for peace.

2. Reaffirmed the "principle of peaceful coexistence as the general line of our foreign policy."

3. Charged that the Chinese Communists have "extremely sharpened" their relations with Moscow and accused them of resorting to a "racial approach" in an attempt to win Asians and Africans to their side, rather than to the side of Communists whose skin is white.

Khrushchev made the speech last week at a meeting of the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party.

It was at that meeting the Kremlin ruled out publication of a bitter Chinese attack on Moscow. Peking, opposed to coexistence with the West, in effect called for Khrushchev's scalp. The 30,000-word document also tried to dictate the agenda for the meeting the Chinese and Russians have scheduled Friday in Moscow in an attempt to iron out their differences.

The Red Chinese embassy in East Berlin used the occasion of Khrushchev's arrival to distribute the Peking document to newsmen covering the Soviet premier's visit.

The East German Foreign Ministry publicly rebuked the Chinese for the act.

The Kremlin said Khrushchev came to East Berlin to take part in the 70th birthday celebration Sunday for East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht.

But no one in Moscow or Berlin believed seriously that Ulbricht's birthday was the real reason. Birthdays of Communist officials within the Red orbit are acknowledged by telegrams of friendship and good wishes.

By the time the East German radio completed a broadcast of the arrival festivities, attended by Ulbricht and a crowd of listless East Germans, it was clear that something else was about to transpire.

About every three hours the radio broadcast the name of one more East European leader on his way to Berlin. Wladislaw Gomulka from Poland, Antonin Novotni from Czechoslovakia, Janos Kadar from Hungary, Teodor Zhivkov from Bulgaria.

Postmaster Discusses Use Of ZIP Numbers

The introduction of the Zone Improvement Program (ZIP), which becomes effective Monday, is a necessity, Postmaster Samuel W. Brown told the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

Brown said "postal paralysis" forced the department to come up with a new system since nearly 70 billion pieces of mail are handled yearly with an average yearly increase of 2 billion.

A list of district ZIP code numbers appears elsewhere in The Review today and postal patrons of the Tri-State area are urged to clip it and save for future reference, as the system begins Monday.

Although the number of post offices has declined from 76,000 to 35,000 the volume of mail has increased tenfold since 1900, Brown pointed out.

The "postal paralysis" particularly hits hard in larger metropolitan offices where it is becoming increasingly difficult to get the mail in, processed and out again without tieups.

As an example, he pointed out under the present system a clerk in a California post office must remember a routing or scheme to follow. With the ZIP Code, the first digit stands for the geographic area which is all that is necessary for the first mail handler to know, he explained.

Brown explained East Liverpool's ZIP Code number is 43920. The 4 stands for the Cincinnati region which takes in all Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Michigan post offices.

The second and third digits, 39, identify Steubenville as the sectional center through which mail destined for East Liverpool is processed. The last two digits identify the post office or the former zone number in case of larger cities where zone numbers formerly were used.

ZIP, in effect, pre-sorts mail since large mailers can pre-sort the mail before depositing it and thus speed up the processing time, the postmaster continued.

The program is designed to make manual processing easier and faster and also advance automatic sorting by machines, he added.

Brown, who has been East Liverpool postmaster for eight years, said the department also has come up with several other plans to improve mail service.

NIMS (nationwide improved mail service) was started in 1961 when postal officials and heavy mailers co-operated to work out a plan to deposit bulk mailings over several days and at normally slack mailing periods rather than dumping the mail along with the usual business letters at the end of a day.

He is working well in the 300 largest cities in which 75 per cent of the mail is launched.

Accelerated business collection delivery (ABCD) was started last year in Pittsburgh in which certain mail boxes are marked and collected at 11 a. m. daily with the mail immediately being returned to the post office and processed for delivery at 3 p. m. in the same city.

Postal officials also have sold large businesses and contractors on a program for vertical mail delivery (VMD) in new, large buildings. Under the plan, space is provided so that a Post Office clerk can receive the mail on the ground floor and process it according to floors prior to delivery to the floor by a dumbwaiter.

Several other programs have been launched within various post office departments to improve processing and delivery and evaluate supervisory personnel, Brown said.

John Smith, president, reminded members the Board of Directors will meet Monday night at the Potters Savings & Loan Co. annex.

Winner's Name Will Be Withheld

Some commentators are calling Henry Cabot Lodge's acceptance of a job as ambassador to South Viet Nam the end of his feud with John F. Kennedy.

It might be tactful to withhold the winner's name until some obscure points have been cleared up.

As one-time chief of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations and an avowed international, Mr. Lodge can be expected to apply himself with vigor to the challenge of the appointment to represent the United States in South Viet Nam.

As a former senator from Massachusetts and a dedicated Republican spokesman who ran for vice president in 1960 on the ticket with Richard M. Nixon, Mr. Lodge can understand the nuances and implications of his position. He is several cuts above the level of diplomatic talent that would be sent to a struggling post like South Viet Nam.

But he is being sent there, obviously, because there is sensitive work to be done. South Viet Nam is in more than military trouble with the Chinese-backed Communists from North Viet Nam. Religious friction is breaking out.

Millions of Americans have seen the horrible picture of a Buddhist priest burning himself to death to protest South Viet Nam's religious persecution of Buddhists, who comprise about 70 per cent of the population.

A committee of clergymen sponsored a full-page advertisement in The New York Times protesting religious persecution in South Viet Nam by a political hierarchy dominated by persons professing to be Roman Catholics.

Considering that the United States now has invested some $2 billion in South Viet Nam, whose other troubles now are being augmented by acute religious friction, no one can say that President Kennedy has done his old antagonist a favor, and no one can believe, either, that Mr. Lodge is going to extricate the United States from a hopeless entanglement in Southeastern Asia.

Propaganda Can Be Good

Maurine Neuberger, the Democratic lady senator from Oregon, is agitating for an Internal Revenue Service crackdown on tax-exempt status for organizations that circulate "extremist propaganda."

Her special target is Daughters of the American Revolution. She points out that this organization's displeasure with the federal government causes it to spread "extremist propaganda." She says tax-exempt organizations whose "sole apparent function is to funnel the funds of right-wing business, free of taxation, into right-wing propaganda mills" have been prolefering the last few years.

This scuttles whatever case Sen. Neuberger might have had if she had included all kinds of propaganda. By narrowing it down to right-wing propaganda, she reveals that she is not as interested in equity as in shutting the mouths of people she disagrees with.

Perhaps she is not familiar with the full meaning of propaganda, which started out as a function of the Roman Catholic Church during the papacy of Urban VIII, to instruct priests—the College of Propaganda.

It is not just the other fellow's point of view thats propaganda. Its your own view, too. Chances are that Mrs. Neuberger herself is sympathetic with some organizations that are dishing out propaganda, too, and whose tax-exempt status she would defend because she thinks their propaganda is fine and dandy.

It is not the nature of propaganda that determines tax-exempt status. It is, rather, whether propaganda is an organization pricinpal or subordinate function. If it exists for no other reason, it has no claim on tax-exemption.

Letter From Max

Dear Truman Twill:

Remember when most small boys wanted to be firemen when they grew up?

Now they want to be astronauts.

Sometime when we don't have anything any better to do we can make a study of the evolution of boyhood idols up through history, although the subject really would be too large for just one book.

We would have to write several volumes to cover the field: First of all dividing the various opportunities for distinction into such things as sports, fighting, science, music oratory, literature, comedy, public service, martyrdom and Hollywood-type newspaperman.

Not so many centuries ago, boys were dreaming about growing up to be champion jousters. At this distance, it is much more pleasant to consider jousting as a nightmare rather than as a dream.

The same goes for cestus fighting.

And dueling.

And fighting lions.

Log birling would be more our speed, if we had enough to time to get in shape—if there is that much time.

IT ALSO would be nice to be proficient in a so-called genteel art such as music, except that the only time we ever had a violin in our hands it produced a noise like a chicken on its way to the chopping block. The mouth organ, kazoo and mouth harp were the only musical instruments we ever mastered, and this opinion was not unanimous.

Oratory is out, because we get the shakes in front of any audience of over four persons.

Science would be fine. All it takes is concentration on mathematics, chemistry, physics, vocabulary, method, brains, discipline and an early start.

Literature also would be fine. All it takes is vocabulary, method, brains, discipline and an early start.

Public service is a wide open field and largely unexplored by most of us. It does not necessarily require too much vocabulary, method or an early start. All it requires is dedication and discipline, chronically in short supply.

The chief satisfaction in attempting comedy is that a comedian can always laugh at his own jokes. But this eventually makes him lonely.

Martyrdom is about as uncrowded a field as you can find, if you have the aptitude for it.

As for being a Hollywood-type newspaperman: Better you should be war minister of Britain B.C.—Before Christine.

ALONG WITH the other boys in our neighborhood we once toyed with the idea of being a world-champion bicycle racer. This is another boyhood dream which must be fading because of modern conditions, such as the hazard of bicycling on highways where the speed limits go as high as 60 or 70 miles an hour.

So about all that is left any more as a goal is astronautics. The big catch to this is that an astronaut must have 1,000 hours as a jet pilot, though they aren't fussy about that much in Russia.

Maybe in a few years this requirement will be reduced to, say, 5 or 10 minutes. That is what we are waiting for.

Faithfully yours,

An unavoidable sight for tourists in Paris a year ago was tommy guns nestled in the arms of the gendarme and vans of heavily armed police cruising the streets guarding against armed violence. Yet today French President de Gaulle is acting as if he had no misgivings about the strength of France.

I share this desire with everybody in my generation, except the ones who have cracked wide open under the strain: To cast off all worries at one swoop, then take them back one by one as vacancies occur. We've had so many insoluble problems thrown at us we despair of ever solving anything.

From my point of view, which grows giddy at heights of 10 feet and over, nothing people do is more incredible than sky-diving, a sport growing in popularity.

One thing about an automatic furnace that makes you remember the hand-fired coal jobs is the way they turn on when the temperature drops in what is now laughingly referred to in these parts as summertime. The Twillery furnace was going full blest the night before Midsummer's Day this year—and with good reason. The temperature dropped to 45.

Everybody is thinking up "Swifties," so named for the immortal Tom Swift and his adverbial existance. A lady wit in the office thought of this one: "All the boys were so nice,' murmured Christine sincerely.

I never have known any report of a public matter to be so distorted as the Supreme Court ruling against officially prescribed religious exercises in public schools. Commentators who obviously know better are saying the ruling is against prayer and Bible reading. This is not true. It is against officially prescribed religious exercises.

Those of us who know how such things turn out should warn the Fourth of July bell ringers in advance. If their project is successful, they will catch you-know-what from the same people who outlawed noisy fireworks.

I am pleased with the foresight I showed years ago in regard to the way merchandise would be handled eventually—in unit containers that could be carried on trucks, transferred to ships, then back to trucks. Railway Express Agency now has a new way to shift the containers it claims will revolutionize freight handling.

The thought is grisly but there must be gratification in knowing you are important enough that news services supply clients with biographical material in advance for your obituary and everything is ready to go in the event of your demise.

The thought rarely occurs to readers of newspaper columns that the most gratifying reaction they have is disagreement, which signifies that what they read was stated so well it drew mental blood.

I am trying hard, but I cannot see the logic of transferring white pupils arbitrarily into Negro school districts in New York City. It seems to me this is disintegration, not integration.

Crime Syndicates Eye Summit Talks

By Victor Riesel

Chiefs of the crime syndicates have been attempting to hold a secret Apalachin-style policy conference for some months now. They almost succeeded this last March. Their "executive committee did gather in a midtown West Side hotel in Manhattan.

Victor Riesel

However, they could conduct no business, though they had hoped to patch up differences between warring regional criminal associations — and discuss their newest dilemma. It has been created by rivalry over invasion of Wall Street, competition for control of some massive union welfare and pension funds running into the hundreds of millions and the seizures of some legitimate businesses through blackmail, muscle and old-fashioned terror.

The March meeting was called in the hope that 40 leaders of organized crime, with intricate "holdings" in industry and some unions, would attend. However, only a small group made it. The others could not escape the FBI's physical and electronic surveillance.

IT HAS NOT been publicly reported, but the FBI and other agencies now turn in an average of 1,200 investigative reports a month to the special intelligence unit of the Organized Crime and Racketeering Section and the Criminal Division of the Justice Department. Each report averages 10 pages. This has forced the division to go on a six-day week. So detailed are these dossiers, that an attempt has been made to devise a computer analysis system to extract the information.

But automation has not yet replaced the crime unit and the division is asking for more money for additional manpower. Even with a short staff, a recent report by the assistant U.S. attorney general, H. J. Miller, revealed that the section is "up to date in New England, Chicago, Milwaukee and Florida, and almost up to date in New York but we are falling behind."

The FBI reports now follow a new Racketeering Section policy. This has been switched from an over-all "nationwide scale" to a concentration "principally on the larger, metropolitan areas."

This has enabled the government to keep the FBI glued to individual criminal leaders, much to the chagrin of many of them. The mobs now are worried by the number of arrests and convictions. They know that there will be important new indictments before the summer is over.

WHAT TROUBLES the crime syndicates' policy makers is that the new federal strategy has developed at a moment when the crime combines are moving more heavily into business and financial circles. Many of these policy makers were at the Nov. 14, 1957, Apalachin crime convention. Some of them have been arrested recently as a result of their invasion of Wall Street.

The switch to legitimate business was decided on after the "crime cookout" — as the Apalachin gathering is referred to now.

It was called for many reasons but essentially to get the organized underworld out of the lucrative, but now dangerous narcotics field — dangerous because at least three Apalachin "delegates" have been sentenced to terms as long as 40 years, 20 years and 15 years in the penitentiary for violating the narcotics laws.

So part of the mob decided to hit the financial district. Recently, the FBI discovered that stolen bonds were being peddled by hoodlums who also specialized in labor operations. One "hot" $100,000 bond had been offered around for $80,000.

In The Southern District of New York, Robert Morgenthau, U.S. attorney, has intensified his investigation of crime syndicates on Wall Street.

There already have been indictments of members of the Apalachin combine for actually looting one big Wall Street firm of scores of thousands of dollars worth of securities.

OTHERS of the Apalachin network have been discovered selling worthless Canadian mining stock; running "boiler room" sales operations of nonexistent companies and actually floating spurious public stock issues.

But the criminal combines have not limited their business activity to the "Street." In addition to taking over firms, looting them and then forcing them into bankruptcy, they operate rackets such as the "ghost executive."

A firm is created or bought up by the mob. They then put their lieutenants' names on the payroll. These executives draw no salary, do no work. But their alleged salary is drawn by the mob and deducted from the company's income as a legitimate payroll expense. The top hoods keep the "salaries" for themselves.

There are many other devices. All lucrative. So the other racketeers want to move in. There are feuds. In the past these have been settled at crime conventions before the battling gets out of hand. But these days they just can't get away from the FBI long enough for one of those secret summits.

Tornado Time

If Dorothy were leaving for Oz today, Weather Bureau tornado warnings would give her time to pack.

Weathermen, once forbidden to mention tornadoes for fear of causing panic, have learned to tell when and approximately where the storms will hit. So far, their predictions cover 20,000 square miles each time a storm situation takes shape. Attempts to shave the area's size are under way.

The Weather Bureau, the armed services and several universities and research groups conduct the studies as part of the National Severe Storms Project, a continuing attempt to pin down new facts about high winds, hail, rain, lightning and tornadoes. The third session of field studies ended in mid-June.

Previous seasons have given the day-to-day weather watch such tools as a device that counts lightning strokes miles away, a valuable aid in spotting trouble in the making.

Despite the new knowledge, the precise recipe for a tornado is still a mystery. Scientists know that funnels are apt to form when cool air moving from the west or northwest slides across warm moist surface air at the same time that a narrow band of strong wind is whipping along at levels in between. But the exact forces that trigger twisters are still unknown.

Some IBOP Policies Are Questioned

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

Your editorial of June 24 entitled, "The Point Seems Well Taken", was straight and to the point; but only the point that President Wheatley wanted to be seen.

The first and foremost reason for discontinuing yearly conventions was the cost.

First, we would like to know the cost of what? Our Constitution states that the "Potters Herald" is to be printed weekly. But Mr. Wheatley, in disregard of our Constitution, is having the "International Potter" printed in Washington, D.C., monthly, and you, Mr. Editor, should know the enormous cost it takes to compile a magazine like the "Potters International". The only thing I think it is a good place for Mr. Wheatley to get his picture in.

Now, we will turn to where your editorial states that nearly a quarter million dollars was paid out by International for transportation to send over 200 delegates and international staff to San Francisco. The amount spent for transportation for the 200 delegates amounted to $92,329.34. Now, we are wondering where the rest of this so called quarter of a million dollars went that Mr. Wheatley states that was supposed to be paid for transportation.

If you will search the records, you will find when Mr. Duffy was president that Atlantic City was about the farthest the people of East Liverpool were privileged to go; but Mr. Wheatley has made the statement numerous times, "If you people vote to go to Timbuktu, I will not object."

Mr. Editor, I wish you could read the financial report of the expense accounts and "jaunts" that Mr. Wheatley and some members of our Executive Board take. You would find trips to Miami, Philadelphia, Chicago, Washington, Cincinnati, etc. I wonder who pays these transportations costs? Also, you have seen in the paper where Mr. Wheatley and members of the board travel over the country helping Dave McDonald, of the Steelworkers Union and Hall of Seafarers Union celebrate something.

Another thing, the vast amount of money spent in organizing. We wonder, organizing what? Just a few small plants, while our membership has decreased from approximately 28,000 to around 16,000. And, speaking of money, how does this sound? When we had approximately 28,000 members, we had seven vice presidents and only three or four were on salary. Now, with 16,000 members we have 10 vice presidents and three organizers, all who are on salary. Would this not be a good place to save money by eliminating some of these unnecessary paid jobs?

We are paying out large sums of money to a firm of lawyers in Cleveland, and Mr. Wheatley always makes sure that one of these lawyers is present at all our conventions to interpret the Constitution and to make sure that no resolution entered will be a detriment to him or his Executive Board. Where do you think the money for these legal fees are coming from? Nowhere in our Constitution can I find where a lawyer is entitled to his expenses to our convention.

It would be hard for you or Mr. Wheatley to make me believe that it is the cost he is concerned about. One thing I forgot to mention about money is the new building, which cost approximately a half million dollars. Do you think with our declining membership that this building was a necessity?

Then you speak of our Constitution; there was never a more dictatorial document written than the IBOP Constitution. I refer you to Article 5, Section 16 Quote: "Only appeals from the decision of the Executive Board concerning suspension or expulsions of locals, members or officers may be brought before the convention.

Also, of the hundreds of people who were deprived of their insurance when this Constitution was adopted. The delegates were told by the IBOP lawyers that it was against the laws of Ohio for groups such as the IBOP to insure their members. Upon later investigating we found this to be untrue. But this was too late to save the people's insurance.

Our convention is the last place where we can appeal to the rank and file of our organization. Last year quite a few delegates had their eyes opened up to the dictatorial power to our executives. When one of Mr. Wheatleys pet projects was going down to defeat, he called on his appointed organizers to vote to save himself. The Constitution definitely states that only elected officials shall have the power to vote.

On this resolution asking to change our convention do you think Mr. Wheatley would allow this as an amendment, that any 10 locals with a quorum present can vote for a special Convention? We know better than this, for it would be too Democratic. Yes, our Constitution calls for special conventions, when necessary, but called, by whom? It is almost impossible to have a referendum vote of our trade.

I would like for Mr. Wheatley to explain what he means by trade meetings. Our contracts for general and chinaware are signed for three years and not annually as Mr. Wheatley states.

Mr. Wheatley uses every trick in the book to keep resolutions from reaching the Convention. I would like you to hear of the many resolutions that he has turned down. Local No. 9 had all their resolutions sent back. The reason, we had four names instead of three. Now that is cutting it mighty thin isn't it? After being re-submitted they were accepted, except for three.

One of these three would have given the Executive Board a pension similar to the ones the potters of East Liverpool would receive, which we understand will pay the potters in 1965 approximately $10 a month. After working 35 years or in 1998 they will receive approximately $45 a month. However, they did accept a resolution which would grant Mr. Wheatley, we have been told, approximately $400 per month.

Now as a parting remark, the Executive Council report of the AFL-CIO for 1961 showed we paid per - capita tax on 26,000 members. Our executive report for 1961 shows we only had 16,362 members. Does this show Mr. Wheatley is interested in saving money? To whose advantage is it to pad our books for approximately 10,000 members and also our money for per capita tax?

Business Is Big Surprise

By Joseph R. Slevin

Business activity is racing ahead at an unexpectedly fast pace.

It went up more rapidly in the first quarter than the experts had anticipated and now it is rising even faster in the second quarter.

The best judgment of top government economists is that national output is climbing to a record breaking high annual rate of $582 billion during the current three-month period. The new peak is $10 million above the $572 billion production rate that the American economy achieved in the first quarter.

The upsurge is the sharpest for any three-month period since the last quarter of 1961.

The present business expansion is 28 months old. An age when upturns supposedly run out of steam. But this advance is setting a different kind of pattern by displaying new zip after it had slowed to a crawl for more than a year.

GOVERNMENT ANALYSTS are quick to caution against taking too rosy a view of the economy's new found strength. They stress that the unemployment rate still is holding at an unacceptable rate of 5.9 per cent and they predict that activity will grow more slowly during the second half of the year than during the opening six months.

But the economy's current performance is a solid display. The experts report that activity is rising along a broad front.

It marks a significant change from the weaker advance that took place last year. Consumers and the federal, state and local governments supplied the big lift in 1962. Now businessmen have joined the parade and are providing powerful additional support.

The experts believe that the final second quarter figures will disclose that gross private domestic investment is the sharpest jump since 1961.

Homebuilding is part of a gross private domestic investment and it is roaring ahead after a disappointing winter. Plant and equipment spending is climbing.

Businessmen are adding substantial quantities to their inventories.

The Commerce Department published a new report recently that gives the experts additional confidence. It is the agency's regular flash durable goods survey and it shows that businessmen placed a larger volume of new machinery order in May than in April.

Winner's Name Will Be Withheld

Some commentators are calling Henry Cabot Lodge's acceptance of a job as ambassador to South Viet Nam the end of his feud with John F. Kennedy.

It might be tactful to withhold the winner's name until some obscure points have been cleared up.

As one-time chief of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations and an avowed international, Mr. Lodge can be expected to apply himself with vigor to the challenge of the appointment to represent the United States in South Viet Nam.

As a former senator from Massachusetts and a dedicated Republican spokesman who ran for vice president in 1960 on the ticket with Richard M. Nixon, Mr. Lodge can understand the nuances and implications of his position. He is several cuts above the level of diplomatic talent that would be sent to a struggling post like South Viet Nam.

But he is being sent there, obviously, because there is sensitive work to be done. South Viet Nam is in more than military trouble with the Chinese-backed Communists from North Viet Nam. Religious friction is breaking out.

Millions of Americans have seen the horrible picture of a Buddhist priest burning himself to death to protest South Viet Nam's religious persecution of Buddhists, who comprise about 70 per cent of the population.

A committee of clergymen sponsored a full-page advertisement in The New York Times protesting religious persecution in South Viet Nam by a political hierarchy dominated by persons professing to be Roman Catholics.

Considering that the United States now has invested some $2 billion in South Viet Nam, whose other troubles now are being augmented by acute religious friction, no one can say that President Kennedy has done his old antagonist a favor, and no one can believe, either, that Mr. Lodge is going to extricate the United States from a hopeless entanglement in Southeastern Asia.

Propaganda Can Be Good

Maurine Neuberger, the Democratic lady senator from Oregon, is agitating for an Internal Revenue Service crackdown on tax-exempt status for organizations that circulate "extremist propaganda."

Her special target is Daughters of the American Revolution. She points out that this organization's displeasure with the federal government causes it to spread "extremist propaganda." She says tax-exempt organizations whose "sole apparent function is to funnel the funds of right-wing business, free of taxation, into right-wing propaganda mills" have been prolefering the last few years.

This scuttles whatever case Sen. Neuberger might have had if she had included all kinds of propaganda. By narrowing it down to right-wing propaganda, she reveals that she is not as interested in equity as in shutting the mouths of people she disagrees with.

Perhaps she is not familiar with the full meaning of propaganda, which started out as a function of the Roman Catholic Church during the papacy of Urban VIII, to instruct priests—the College of Propaganda.

It is not just the other fellow's point of view thats propaganda. Its your own view, too. Chances are that Mrs. Neuberger herself is sympathetic with some organizations that are dishing out propaganda, too, and whose tax-exempt status she would defend because she thinks their propaganda is fine and dandy.

It is not the nature of propaganda that determines tax-exempt status. It is, rather, whether propaganda is an organization pricinpal or subordinate function. If it exists for no other reason, it has no claim on tax-exemption.

Tornado Time

If Dorothy were leaving for Oz today, Weather Bureau tornado warnings would give her time to pack.

Weathermen, once forbidden to mention tornadoes for fear of causing panic, have learned to tell when and approximately where the storms will hit. So far, their predictions cover 20,000 square miles each time a storm situation takes shape. Attempts to shave the area's size are under way.

The Weather Bureau, the armed services and several universities and research groups conduct the studies as part of the National Severe Storms Project, a continuing attempt to pin down new facts about high winds, hail, rain, lightning and tornadoes. The third session of field studies ended in mid-June.

Previous seasons have given the day-to-day weather watch such tools as a device that counts lightning strokes miles away, a valuable aid in spotting trouble in the making.

Despite the new knowledge, the precise recipe for a tornado is still a mystery. Scientists know that funnels are apt to form when cool air moving from the west or northwest slides across warm moist surface air at the same time that a narrow band of strong wind is whipping along at levels in between. But the exact forces that trigger twisters are still unknown.

Some IBOP Policies Are Questioned

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

Your editorial of June 24 entitled, "The Point Seems Well Taken", was straight and to the point; but only the point that President Wheatley wanted to be seen.

The first and foremost reason for discontinuing yearly conventions was the cost.

First, we would like to know the cost of what? Our Constitution states that the "Potters Herald" is to be printed weekly. But Mr. Wheatley, in disregard of our Constitution, is having the "International Potter" printed in Washington, D.C., monthly, and you, Mr. Editor, should know the enormous cost it takes to compile a magazine like the "Potters International". The only thing I think it is a good place for Mr. Wheatley to get his picture in.

Now, we will turn to where your editorial states that nearly a quarter million dollars was paid out by International for transportation to send over 200 delegates and international staff to San Francisco. The amount spent for transportation for the 200 delegates amounted to $92,329.34. Now, we are wondering where the rest of this so called quarter of a million dollars went that Mr. Wheatley states that was supposed to be paid for transportation.

If you will search the records, you will find when Mr. Duffy was president that Atlantic City was about the farthest the people of East Liverpool were privileged to go; but Mr. Wheatley has made the statement numerous times, "If you people vote to go to Timbuktu, I will not object."

Mr. Editor, I wish you could read the financial report of the expense accounts and "jaunts" that Mr. Wheatley and some members of our Executive Board take. You would find trips to Miami, Philadelphia, Chicago, Washington, Cincinnati, etc. I wonder who pays these transportations costs? Also, you have seen in the paper where Mr. Wheatley and members of the board travel over the country helping Dave McDonald, of the Steelworkers Union and Hall of Seafarers Union celebrate something.

Another thing, the vast amount of money spent in organizing. We wonder, organizing what? Just a few small plants, while our membership has decreased from approximately 28,000 to around 16,000. And, speaking of money, how does this sound? When we had approximately 28,000 members, we had seven vice presidents and only three or four were on salary. Now, with 16,000 members we have 10 vice presidents and three organizers, all who are on salary. Would this not be a good place to save money by eliminating some of these unnecessary paid jobs?

We are paying out large sums of money to a firm of lawyers in Cleveland, and Mr. Wheatley always makes sure that one of these lawyers is present at all our conventions to interpret the Constitution and to make sure that no resolution entered will be a detriment to him or his Executive Board. Where do you think the money for these legal fees are coming from? Nowhere in our Constitution can I find where a lawyer is entitled to his expenses to our convention.

It would be hard for you or Mr. Wheatley to make me believe that it is the cost he is concerned about. One thing I forgot to mention about money is the new building, which cost approximately a half million dollars. Do you think with our declining membership that this building was a necessity?

Then you speak of our Constitution; there was never a more dictatorial document written than the IBOP Constitution. I refer you to Article 5, Section 16 Quote: "Only appeals from the decision of the Executive Board concerning suspension or expulsions of locals, members or officers may be brought before the convention.

Also, of the hundreds of people who were deprived of their insurance when this Constitution was adopted. The delegates were told by the IBOP lawyers that it was against the laws of Ohio for groups such as the IBOP to insure their members. Upon later investigating we found this to be untrue. But this was too late to save the people's insurance.

Our convention is the last place where we can appeal to the rank and file of our organization. Last year quite a few delegates had their eyes opened up to the dictatorial power to our executives. When one of Mr. Wheatleys pet projects was going down to defeat, he called on his appointed organizers to vote to save himself. The Constitution definitely states that only elected officials shall have the power to vote.

On this resolution asking to change our convention do you think Mr. Wheatley would allow this as an amendment, that any 10 locals with a quorum present can vote for a special Convention? We know better than this, for it would be too Democratic. Yes, our Constitution calls for special conventions, when necessary, but called, by whom? It is almost impossible to have a referendum vote of our trade.

I would like for Mr. Wheatley to explain what he means by trade meetings. Our contracts for general and chinaware are signed for three years and not annually as Mr. Wheatley states.

Mr. Wheatley uses every trick in the book to keep resolutions from reaching the Convention. I would like you to hear of the many resolutions that he has turned down. Local No. 9 had all their resolutions sent back. The reason, we had four names instead of three. Now that is cutting it mighty thin isn't it? After being re-submitted they were accepted, except for three.

One of these three would have given the Executive Board a pension similar to the ones the potters of East Liverpool would receive, which we understand will pay the potters in 1965 approximately $10 a month. After working 35 years or in 1998 they will receive approximately $45 a month. However, they did accept a resolution which would grant Mr. Wheatley, we have been told, approximately $400 per month.

Now as a parting remark, the Executive Council report of the AFL-CIO for 1961 showed we paid per - capita tax on 26,000 members. Our executive report for 1961 shows we only had 16,362 members. Does this show Mr. Wheatley is interested in saving money? To whose advantage is it to pad our books for approximately 10,000 members and also our money for per capita tax?

Business Is Big Surprise

By Joseph R. Slevin

Business activity is racing ahead at an unexpectedly fast pace.

It went up more rapidly in the first quarter than the experts had anticipated and now it is rising even faster in the second quarter.

The best judgment of top government economists is that national output is climbing to a record breaking high annual rate of $582 billion during the current three-month period. The new peak is $10 million above the $572 billion production rate that the American economy achieved in the first quarter.

The upsurge is the sharpest for any three-month period since the last quarter of 1961.

The present business expansion is 28 months old. An age when upturns supposedly run out of steam. But this advance is setting a different kind of pattern by displaying new zip after it had slowed to a crawl for more than a year.

GOVERNMENT ANALYSTS are quick to caution against taking too rosy a view of the economy's new found strength. They stress that the unemployment rate still is holding at an unacceptable rate of 5.9 per cent and they predict that activity will grow more slowly during the second half of the year than during the opening six months.

But the economy's current performance is a solid display. The experts report that activity is rising along a broad front.

It marks a significant change from the weaker advance that took place last year. Consumers and the federal, state and local governments supplied the big lift in 1962. Now businessmen have joined the parade and are providing powerful additional support.

The experts believe that the final second quarter figures will disclose that gross private domestic investment is the sharpest jump since 1961.

Homebuilding is part of a gross private domestic investment and it is roaring ahead after a disappointing winter. Plant and equipment spending is climbing.

Businessmen are adding substantial quantities to their inventories.

The Commerce Department published a new report recently that gives the experts additional confidence. It is the agency's regular flash durable goods survey and it shows that businessmen placed a larger volume of new machinery order in May than in April.

Legislature

ment to outlaw the poll tax as a condition of voting eligibility.

For the first time in the memory of living observers, the legislature failed to pass a bill to cover the sundry claims of individuals injured by the state. The bill failed to receive the necessary votes last week and, although Senate Minority Leader Frank W. King moved to reconsider, no action ever was taken on the motion. The bill appropriated nearly $1 million to cover claims against the state, which cannot be sued.

Among some of the better-publicized measures defeated were:

HB 41, Cooper et al — Compulsory motor vehicle inspection.

HB 192, Hoy — To make murder and rape the only crimes not eligible for probation.

HB 234, Porterfield — Permission for voters to approve income taxes in districts for technical institutes, community colleges, state university branches and joint vocational schools.

HB 589, Aronoff — To provide an alternate procedure for acquiring urban renewal property.

HB 309, Aronoff — To require a county prosecutor to furnish a defendant a copy of his own confession.

HB 385, Reilly—To provide that the Cosmetology Board set up rules for schools of cosmetology.

HB 130, Aronoff — To reduce the tax on small-business investment firms.

HB 933, Dannley — TO authorize the State Board of Education to seek court injunctions against schools failing to meet state standards (aimed at the Amish).

HB 284. Mrs. Mackenzie et al—To create a five-member commission to regulate lobbying.

HB 963, Fisher-Deddens — To appropriate nearly $1 million for sundry claims.

SB 9, Fess — To allow hunting migratory water fowl on Sunday.

SB 214, Pepple — To require high school graduates in lower half of class to take examinations for entering state universities.

Before recessing, the House acted to kill all legislation pending in committees, including fair housing and hospital immunity measures.

Senators took no such action, leaving pending matter for possible consideration when they return next month, it was explained.

The Greek people produced the first written music.

ment to outlaw the poll tax as a condition of voting eligibility.

For the first time in the memory of living observers, the legislature failed to pass a bill to cover the sundry claims of individuals injured by the state. The bill failed to receive the necessary votes last week and, although Senate Minority Leader Frank W. King moved to reconsider, no action ever was taken on the motion. The bill appropriated nearly $1 million to cover claims against the state, which cannot be sued.

Among some of the better-publicized measures defeated were:

HB 41, Cooper et al — Compulsory motor vehicle inspection.

HB 192, Hoy — To make murder and rape the only crimes not eligible for probation.

HB 234, Porterfield — Permission for voters to approve income taxes in districts for technical institutes, community colleges, state university branches and joint vocational schools.

HB 589, Aronoff — To provide an alternate procedure for acquiring urban renewal property.

HB 309, Aronoff — To require a county prosecutor to furnish a defendant a copy of his own confession.

HB 385, Reilly—To provide that the Cosmetology Board set up rules for schools of cosmetology.

HB 130, Aronoff — To reduce the tax on small-business investment firms.

HB 933, Dannley — TO authorize the State Board of Education to seek court injunctions against schools failing to meet state standards (aimed at the Amish).

HB 284, Mrs. Mackenzie et al—To create a five-member commission to regulate lobbying.

HB 963, Fisher-Deddens — To appropriate nearly $1 million for sundry claims.

SB 9, Fess — To allow hunting migratory water fowl on Sunday.

SB 214, Pepple — To require high school graduates in lower half of class to take examinations for entering state universities.

Before recessing, the House acted to kill all legislation pending in committees, including fair housing and hospital immunity measures.

Senators took no such action, leaving pending matter for possible consideration when they return next month it was explained.

The Greek people produced the first written music.

THE BOOK AND THE FLAG

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Behind the open Book, we see the Star Spangled Banner of the United States and the cross-borne flag of Christianity.

Does this seem like a strange combination to you—the flag of a nation beside the flag of a religion?

Not at all! Look into the Bible and see these great truths: MAN IS THE CHILD OF A LOVING GOD; WE ARE MADE IN GOD'S IMAGE. Here is explained the DIGNITY OF THE INDIVIDUAL.

Now we begin to realize how close is the relation between democracy and the Church.

Our national flag, our church flag would not be here today were it not for the open Book.

Come learn of this Book. Come worship and study in the church of your choice this Sunday.

THE BOOK AND THE FLAG

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

"The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Behind the open Book, we see the Star Spangled Banner of the United States and the cross-borne flag of Christianity.

Does this seem like a strange combination to you—the flag of a nation beside the flag of a religion?

Not at all! Look into the Bible and see these great truths: MAN IS THE CHILD OF A LOVING GOD; WE ARE MADE IN GOD'S IMAGE. Here is explained the DIGNITY OF THE INDIVIDUAL.

Now we begin to realize how close is the relation between democracy and the Church.

Our national flag, our church flag would not be here today were it not for the open Book.

Come learn of this Book. Come worship and study in the church of your choice this Sunday.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What can I do about a cloudy or streaky mirror?

A. Add three tablespoons of ammonia to a bucket of water, dip a clean chamois into this, and swab the mirror. Then wring the chamois well out, and wipe the water off. Or, mix cold water with starch and apply to the mirror. When this is perfectly dry, wipe the powdery starch off with a dry cloth. If the streaks show signs of stubbornness, you can sometimes remedy them with a little oil-type of furniture polish.

Q. How can I flatten the edge or corner of a linoleum rug that persists in bulbing or curling up?

A. Place a hot-water bottle filled with hot water over the bulged or curled area. When the linoleum is thoroughly warm, remove the bottle and place a large book or flat weight over the spot until it has cooled. A stubborn spot will usually yield to this treatment.

Q. How can I remedy chair legs or rungs that have become loosened?

A. You can usually do a pretty good job of locking these legs or rungs securely in their holes if you'll drive some small brads in the sides of the holes at an angle before forcing the leg tenons or rungs back into the holes. The brads will bend and act as wedges.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What can I do about a cloudy or streaky mirror?

A. Add three tablespoons of ammonia to a bucket of water, dip a clean chamois into this, and swab the mirror. Then wring the chamois well out, and wipe the water off. Or, mix cold water with starch and apply to the mirror. When this is perfectly dry, wipe the powdery starch off with a dry cloth. If the streaks show signs of stubbornness, you can sometimes remedy them with a little oil-type of furniture polish.

Q. How can I flatten the edge or corner of a linoleum rug that persists in bulbing or curling up?

A. Place a hot-water bottle filled with hot water over the bulged or curled area. When the linoleum is thoroughly warm, remove the bottle and place a large book or flat weight over the spot until it has cooled. A stubborn spot will usually yield to this treatment.

Q. How can I remedy chair legs or rungs that have become loosened?

A. You can usually do a pretty good job of locking these legs or rungs securely in their holes if you'll drive some small brads in the sides of the holes at an angle before forcing the leg tenons or rungs back into the holes. The brads will bend and act as wedges.

Each morning from 8:15 to 8:25, the teachers meet for coffee and conversation. "We go over any new paper work that comes across the desk, we discuss testing and problems and it gives the teachers a chance to exchange ideas and other opinions related to their work," says Principal W. SUMMER AND YOUR SEPTIC TANK

Surprising though it may seem, summer with its sunshine and showers, is just about the most critical time of the year for owners of septic tanks.

To correctly understand the aforementioned statement it is first necessary to analyze the workings of septic tanks, and the effect of seasonal changes.

Your septic tank is a chamber wherein exists a complex of micro-organisms, each type equipped to handle and dispose of different types of waste material. Working as a team, these infinitesimal forms of life break down and liquefy the solids, leaving only a liquid which is free to run out for final dispoal in your drainfield or drywell. Regularly activated, these living "garbage disposals" will normally keep up with the flow of waste, and your system will function properly. However, surveys show that during the summer season, more systems "back-up" and overflow than at any other time of year, creating expensive and highly unsanitary conditions.

WHY????

The answer to that question is simply "temperature". Bacterial life dislikes temperature changes, and, since your septic tank has no heating system to keep things cozy so that they can go about their work in comfort, they die off in the millions and billions when winter arrives, leaving only a "skeleton crew" of weakened bacteria to handle the heavy loads. Consequently, as winter months pass slowly by, a build-up of undigested grease and solids occurs, clogging the tank and passing through to the dispoal fields. Grease congeals and deposits in the pores of the soil, almost to the point of being beyond repair. Melting ice, snow, and showers add to the problem by increasing the amount of water entering the system.

HOW SEA-CAL ENZYMES HELP

The powerful digestive powers of the enzymes contained in SEA-Cal rapidly liquefy the hard grease packs in the septic tanks and drainfields, changing such grease and other solids into available food for the bacteria. SEA-CAL also contains 80,000,000 anerobic bacteria per gram (28 grams in each ounce), and with each bacteria reproducing itself many times a day, the micro-organism population is rapidly built up to the adequate numbers, with the ultimate return of full operating efficiency.

IMPORTANT ! ! ! ! !

FOR THE BEST PROTECTION DURING SUMMER, DOUBLE YOUR SEA-CAL TREATMENTS. PARTICULARLY WHERE TANKS ARE UNDERSIZE OR ARE SUBJECT TO OVERLOADS AND/OR AMOUNTS OF DETERGENTS AND BLEACHES.

SUMMER AND YOUR SEPTIC TANK

Surprising though it may seem, summer with its sunshine and showers, is just about the most critical time of the year for owners of septic tanks.

To correctly understand the aforementioned statement it is first necessary to analyze the workings of septic tanks, and the effect of seasonal changes.

Your septic tank is a chamber wherein exists a complex of micro-organisms, each type equipped to handle and dispose of different types of waste material. Working as a team, these infinitestimal forms of life break down and liquefy the solids, leaving only a liquid which is free to run out for final dispoal in your drainfield or drywell. Regularly activated, these living "garbage disposals" will normally keep up with the flow of waste, and your system will function properly. However, surveys show that during the summer season, more systems "back-up" and overflow than at any other time of year, creating expensive and highly unsanitary conditions.

WHY????

The answer to that question is simply "temperature". Bacterial life dislikes temperature changes, and, since your septic tank has no heating system to keep things cozy so that they can go about their work in comfort, they die off in the millions and billions when winter arrives, leaving only a "skeleton crew" of weakened bacteria to handle the heavy loads. Consequently, as winter months pass slowly by, a build-up of undigested grease and solids occurs, clogging the tank and passing through to the dispoal fields. Grease congeals and deposits in the pores of the soil, almost to the point of being beyond repair. Melting ice, snow, and showers add to the problem by increasing the amount of water entering the system.

HOW SEA-CAL ENZYMES HELP

The powerful digestive powers of the enzymes contained in SEA-Cal rapidly liquefy the hard grease packs in the septic tanks and drainfields, changing such grease and other solids into available food for the bacteria. SEA-CAL also contains 80,000,000 anerobic bacteria per gram (28 grams in each ounce), and with each bacteria reproducing itself many times a day, the micro-organism population is rapidly built up to the adequate numbers, with the ultimate return of full operating efficiency.

IMPORTANT ! ! ! ! !

FOR THE BEST PROTECTION DURING SUMMER, DOUBLE YOUR SEA-CAL TREATMENTS. PARTICULARLY WHERE TANKS ARE UNDERSIZE OR ARE SUBJECT TO OVERLOADS AND/OR AMOUNTS OF DETERGENTS AND BLEACHES.

Spahn Notches 338th; Cards Blast Colts To Hold Lead

Twins Rip Nats Twice For 6th Straight; Trail By 1½

Giants Trim Reds; Pirates And Cubs Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The sun seems to be standing still for Warren Spahn, supposedly in the twilight of his career.

Now 42, the ageless left-hander of the Milwaukee Braves brought back memories of his early days Friday night when he retired 19 men in order and wound up with a three-hitter and the 338th victory of his career in a 1-0 triumph over the Dodgers at Los Angeles.

With a brilliant performance in which he did not allow a hit until Jim Gilliam bounced a single past third base with one out in the seventh, Spahn brought his 1963 record to 11-3.

It was the 58th shutout of his 19-year big league career.

The victory also kept him heading toward his 13th 20-victory season, while dropping the second-place Dodgers 1½ games back of National League leading St. Louis. The Cardinals remained on top by downing Houston 9-2 as Curt Flood drove in four runs with a trio of singles.

Third-place San Francisco got a two-hit pitching job from Juan Marichal and two relievers but needed Chuck Hiller's tie-breaking single and homers by Willie Mays and Willie McCovey in the eighth inning to defeat Cincinnati 7-3.

In other games, the Chicago Cubs tied the Reds for fourth place by edging Philadelphia 4-3 on Ron Santo's 11th inning homer and Pittsburgh used Bill Virdon's two-run homer as the key blow in a 3-1 triumph over the New York Mets.

Boston knocked off the American League leading New York Yankees 4-3, Cleveland downed second-place Chicago 4-3, Baltimore nipped Kansas City 2-1, Minnesota took two from Washington 11-4 and 10-3 and the Los Angeles Angels and Detroit split a doubleheader, each winning 8-3.

Flood produced most of the power for the Cardinals while George Altman knocked in two runs with a triple and a sacrifice fly and Julian Javier extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a single and double. Five Colt errors and four unearned runs made it easy for Bob Gibson, who brought his record to 7-3 with a six-hitter. Dick Grott, 2-6, took the loss.

Vada Pinson got the first hit off Marichal, a two-run homer with two out in the sixth. Pinson's eighth inning single—the Reds only other hit—chased Marichal and an error by winning pitcher Billy Hoeft enabled the Reds to tie it 3-3. Hiller, Mays and McCovey then took over against Al Worthington, 2-2. McCovey had two homers for the night. Orlando Cepeda also connected for the Giants.

Santo's homer off Jack Baldschun, 5-4, gave the Cubs victory to Dick Ellsworth, who kept 10 hits well spaced for a 10-6 record.

Virdon's homer got the Pirates off to a 2-0 lead against the Mets and they held on behind Joe Gibbon, 3-5, and reliever Al McBean. The loss was tagged on Roger Craig, who went the distance and allowed only six hits but came away with his 10th straight defeat.

Racing Off Two Days At Waterford Park

After today's card, racing won't resume at Waierford Park until Wednesday at 3:45 p.m. There will be no racing Monday or Tuesday. A 12-race program beginning at 2 p.m. will be staged on Thursday, July 4.

Game In Cleveland July 9

Pearson To Start For AL All-Stars In Centerfield

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Little Albie Pearson, a three-time loser in the major leagues because of his anemic build and batting average, was named starting center fielder on the American League All-Star team today.

The 5-foot-5½ Los Angeles leadoff batter, who is batting .313 and pacing his league in runs scored, joined a field of such diamond giants as Willie Mays, Al Kaline and Henry Aaron for the 34th annual All-Star game to be played in Cleveland July 9.

The American League, which divided two games with the National last year, maintains a 17-15 over-all advantage. One game ended in a tie. The leagues return to the one-game plan this year after a four-year double All-Star period.

Shortstop Dick Groat of St. Louis with 238 votes and right fielder Al Kaline of Detroit with 226, were the leading vote getters in a poll of their fellow players which produced seven repeaters from last year's squads and no real surprises.

Two players, first baseman Joe Pepitone of the New York Yankees and shortstop Zoilo Versalles of the Minnesota Twins, were named for the first time.

McKinley In Quarter-Finals

U.S. Net Star Advances In Wimbledon's Tourney

By JOHN GALE

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—It's a pretty good bet that the early bird who caught the worm didn't come from an American university.

That's the opinion of many of the U.S. squad battling their way through these 77th Wimbledon tennis championships.

Both Chuck McKinley and Frank Froehling — the two last Americans in the men's singles—say most of the U. S. players arrived too late to do much good. The reason: Many were tied up right until last week in U. S. intercollegiate tournaments.

McKinley and Froehling — both students at Trinity University in San Antonio—were given special permission to duck the intercollegiates and come to Europe early. McKinley arrived three weeks ago. Froehling had a week's warm-up in a pre-Wimbledon tournament.

But talented Americans like Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif; Bill Bond, San Diego, Calif; and Tom Edlefson, Berkeley, Calif. as well as Mexico's Rafael Osuna, a student at the University of Southern California were all on duty in the intercollegiates at Princeton, N.J.

Thrown into action here on grass courts and virtually at a moment's notice, Bond went out in the first round, Ralston in the second and Osuna and Edlefsen in the third. The field of 20 young Americans was trimmed to two by the time the round of 16 was reached.

McKinley lasted his way into the quarter-finals Friday with a typical mixture of good and indifferent shots against Jaidip Mukerjea of India, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3. The 22-year-old American has yet to drop a set in this tournament.

McKinley now meets Australia's Martin Mulligan, last year's defeated finalist, or British Davis Cupper Bobby Wilson in the scrap for a semifinal place.

Froehling still has to win his berth in the quarter-finals. He plays today against Roger Taylor, a 20-year-old Briton with a big serve but not long on experience. Mulligan and Wilson also play today.

About 90 per cent of American adults suffer from some sort of foot trouble.

Red Sox Top Yanks; Tribe Trips Chisox

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's been an uphill struggle for Harmon Killebrew and the Minnesota Twins. But now the once-slumping slugger and the American League pennant chasers are in stride—and climbing.

With Killebrew supplying much of the muscle the Twins ran their winning streak to six games Friday night, crushing the Washington Senators in a doubleheader 11-4 and 10-3.

Killebrew belted his 17th homer, two doubles and three singles and batted across five runs as he raised his average to .280—his high point of the year. And the Twins advanced to within 1½ games of the league lead—the closest they've been to the top since the opening week of the season.

In other AL action—

Boston's surprising Red Sox, held hitless by Al Downing for six innings, pushed across three runs in the seventh and scored the clincher in the eighth for a 4-3 triumph over New York's first-place Yankees.

Early Wynn of Cleveland failed again in an effort to win his 300th, but the Indians shaded the Chicago White Sox 4-3 with Willie Kirkland's squeeze bunt in the ninth inning sending in the deciding run.

Leon Wagner clubbed two homers and two singles, driving in four runs, as the Los Angeles Angels won the first of a doubleheader over Detroit 8-3, but the Tigers pulled out the second game 8-3 with a seven-run outburst in the eighth inning highlighted by Rock Colavito's homer.

And Russ Snyder's ninth inning homer gave Baltimore a 2-1 decision over Kansas City and made Steve Barber the League's first 12-game winner.

The results left the Yanks seven percentage points ahead of the White Sox and the Red Sox with a three-point edge on the Twins.

In the National League—front-running St. Louis bombed Houston 9-2; Warren Spahn pitched Milwaukee to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers; San Francisco overcame Cincinnati 7-3; the Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia 4-3 on Ron Santo's 11th-inning homer; and Pittsburgh trimmed the New York Mets 3-1.

All-American Grid Contest Set Tonight

By MARVIN R. PIKE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The weather could be an important factor in determining the winner of tonight's third annual All-America football game.

If it continues hot and humid as it has been all week—and the weatherman says it might—fellows like Mississippi's Jim Dunaway, a 270-pounder, and Michigan State's Dave Behrman, a 265-pounder, might find themselves a lot lighter before the game's end. Heat and exercise often result in weight loss.

The forecast calls for warm and humid weather again today, with a high temperature of about 90. Afternoon or evening thundershowers also were predicted.

Approximately 30,000 fans were expected to watch the East, coached by Wisconsin's Milt Bruhn, and the West, coached by Southern California's John McKay battle in War Memorial Stadium.

Both coaches have picked their own quarterback to call signals. McKay will go with Bill Nelsen and Bruhn with Ron Vanderkelen. Both hooked up in a Rose Bowl passing duel last New Year's Day, with Nelsen and his fellow Trojans emerging victorious over the Badgers.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. EST. The game will be televised nationally by ABC, beginning at 9 p.m. EST.

75 Packed Within 8 Strokes

Traffic Jam At Cleveland

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP)—The $110,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament featured a traffic jam today with 75 survivors of the first two rounds packed within eight strokes of each other.

PGA officials said it is the tightest concentration of talent in years, and they've arranged an 18-hole Monday playoff instead of a sudden-death climax if a 72-hole deadlock occurs.

The red-hot field short-circuited Beechmont County Club's par 71 plant through the first 36 holes of the four-day chase, and 51 hit the halfway mark under the card. Scores of 143, one over, were necessary to survive the cutoff.

Heading the pack with 135 after rounds of 66 and 69 were 40-year-old Bo Wininger, Oklahoma's big game hunter; 27-year-old Gary Player, who comes from South Africa, where Wininger shoots his lions and such; and 26-year-old Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga. 1958 national amateur finalist.

Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, who described his par of 68 rounds as "just fair," was wrapped in a four-way tie at 136 with Tony Lema, the year's fourth ranking money winner; Jim Ferree, who had eight birdies Friday and missed a tie for the top by bogeying the 18th; and Bob Goalby, who admitted, "I've had a hot putter since the third hole of the tournament."

Veteran Sam Snead and first-round co-leader Bill Eggers were tied at 137 with Rod Funseth of Spokane and Don January. They were a stroke up on a five-way jam which included U.S. Open champion Julius Boros and Mason Rudolph. The latter had six consecutive birdies Friday.

Arnold Palmer was in position to make one of his famous stretch drives, but he had a lot of company at 139, where 11 are bracketed.

Wynn Fails In 5th Try To Post 300th Victory

By JERRY LISKA
Associate Press ports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Ancient Early Wynn, whose quest for his 300th victory is becoming an agonizing crusade, had no beef after his fifth try to crash the magic pitching circle failed Friday night.

As a matter of fact, Cleveland's 43-year-old Wynn left after six innings and a five-hit pitching stint against the Chicago White Sox more or less of his own accord. And, it turned out, he was taken off the hook as the Indians rallied in the ninth for a 4-3 victory.

Wynn, who returned to the baseball wars in Tribe warpaint June 21, had a great duel going for six innings with 22-year-old Dave Debusschere, seeking his first major league victory.

Wynn, yielding to a pinch batter in the seventh and trailing 3-2, explained: "For five innings, I had good stuff and was getting the ball across the way I wanted. Then, I started getting tired and told Birdie Tebbetts, and he took me out.

"I'm gradually working into shape where I can pitch with only four or five days rest and be ready whenever Birdie wants me to go.

"I thought I did pretty good, although I didn't have the stuff here I had a week ago in my first crack with Cleveland against the Sox." Wynn lost to Chicago 2-0 a week before on Ron Hansen's two-run home run in the ninth at Cleveland.

Jo Ann Prentice Eyes 1st Victory On Pro Golf Tour

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Jo Ann Prentice of Columbia, S.C., never has won a tournament on the ladies professional golfers tour, but today may be the day in the third and final round of the 54-hole Carvel Open.

Jo Ann fired a five-under-par 67 for a tournament record in Friday's second round at the Tam O'Shanter club to climb within two strokes of Judy Kimball of Sioux City, Iowa, the leader at 139. This was seven strokes better than her first round and another 34-33 probably would be enough to win her first tournament.

Jo Ann needed only 26 putts for her 67 as she posted six birdies to tie Marilynn Smith, Tequesta, Fla. for the runner-up spot at 141. Miss Smith, the first round leader, shot a 71 and missed a first place tie with Miss Kimball when she bogied the par 4 18th.

Frankfort Wins, 6-3

Frankfort banged out eight hits to defeat Newell, 6-3, in a Junior Division game of the South Side League Friday at Frankfort. Newell was limited to four hits by Cox of Frankfort. Patterson was the losing pitcher and Cox the winner.

Steubenville's Watson Wins In Senior Golf Play

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Steubenville's John C. Watson proved as steady in coolish temperatures that followed a morning rain Friday as he had been in 90-degree weather the day before, and he has the Ohio Seniors Golf crown to show for his consistency.

First round leader in the 36-hole, two-day event with a 75, Watson was one of four golfers who bettered that with 74s on the final 18. His 149 total put him two strokes ahead of defending champion Robert Bell of Worthington, who strung together 77-74—151.

Watson is a 59-year-old stockbroker who hadn't won a major title before copping this event for men age 55 and up.

Dave Rose of Cleveland with 78-74—152 and Richard Besst of New Philadelphia, a former champion, with 76-78—154 finished third and fourth in the competition at Miami Valley Golf Club's 6,648-yard, par 71 course.

Kathy Newton's Winner Of Ohio Golf Tournament

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The crown of Ohio's women golfers rests on the head of Miss Kathy Newton of Cleveland after eight years of trying.

Miss Newton took the Ohio Women's Amateur Golf Tournament Friday by defeating 18-year-old Martha Kosar of Cuyahoga Falls, 7 and 6, in match play at Brookside Country club here.

Miss Kosar, a sophomore at Kent State University, was playing her first state tournament, never having been past the quarterfinals. For Miss Newton, dean of girls at Kirtland High School, it was the eighth attempt at the championship. She was runner-up in the 1961 match.

Mrs. John B. Whitacre of Canton, winner of the 1962 tournament and defending champion, was defeated in Tuesday's opening round.

Spahn Notches 338th; Cards Blast Colts To Hold Lead

Twins Rip Nats Twice For 6th Straight; Trail By 1½

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The sun seems to be standing still for Warren Spahn, supposedly in the twilight of his career.

Now 42, the ageless left-hander of the Milwaukee Braves brought back memories of his early days Friday night when he retired 19 men in order and wound up with a three-hitter and the 338th victory of his career in a 1-0 triumph over the Dodgers at Los Angeles.

With a brilliant performance in which he did not allow a hit until Jim Gilliam bounced a single past third base with one out in the seventh, Spahn brought his 1963 record to 11-3.

It was the 58th shutout of his 19-year big league career.

The victory also kept him heading toward his 13th 20-victory season, while dropping the second-place Dodgers 1½ games back of National League leading St. Louis. The Cardinals remained on top by downing Houston 9-2 as Curt Flood drove in four runs with a trio of singles.

Third-place San Francisco got a two-hit pitching job from Juan Marichal and two relievers but needed Chuck Hiller's tie-breaking single and homers by Willie Mays and Willie McCovey in the eighth inning to defeat Cincinnati 7-3.

In other games, the Chicago Cubs tied the Reds for fourth place by edging Philadelphia 4-3 on Ron Santo's 11th inning homer and Pittsburgh used Bill Virdon's two-run homer as the key blow in a 3-1 triumph over the New York Mets.

Boston knocked off the American League leading New York Yankees 4-3, Cleveland downed second-place Chicago 4-3, Baltimore nipped Kansas City 2-1, Minnesota took two from Washington 11-4 and 10-3 and the Los Angeles Angels and Detroit split a doubleheader, each winning 8-3.

Flood produced most of the power for the Cardinals while George Altman knocked in two runs with a triple and a sacrifice fly and Julian Javier extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a single and double. Five Colt errors and four unearned runs made it easy for Bob Gibson, who brought his record to 7-3 with a six-hitter. Dick Grott, 2-6, took the loss.

Vada Pinson got the first hit off Marichal, a two-run homer with two out in the sixth. Pinson's eighth inning single—the Reds only other hit—chased Marichal and an error by winning pitcher Billy Hoeft enabled the Reds to tie it 3-3. Hiller, Mays and McCovey then took over against Al Worthington, 2-2. McCovey had two homers for the night. Orlando Cepeda also connected for the Giants.

Santo's homer off Jack Baldschun, 5-4, gave the Cubs victory to Dick Ellsworth, who kept 10 hits well spaced for a 10-6 record.

Virdon's homer got the Pirates off to a 2-0 lead against the Mets and they held on behind Joe Gibbon, 3-5, and reliever Al McBean. The loss was tagged on Roger Craig, who went the distance and allowed only six hits but came away with his 10th straight defeat.

Racing Off Two Days At Waterford Park

After today's card, racing won't resume at Waterford Park until Wednesday at 3:45 p.m. There will be no racing Monday or Tuesday. A 12-race program beginning at 2 p.m. will be staged on Thursday, July 4.

OUT AT HOME. John Powell, Oriole leftfielder, is tagged out at the plate by Kansas City catcher Haywood Sullivan in Friday night's game at Baltimore. Powell tried to score on Steve Barber's single to right field but was cut down by throw from Gino Cimoli, A's rightfielder, in second inning. (UPI Telephoto)

CHICAGO (AP)—Ancient Early Wynn, whose quest for his 300th victory is becoming an agonizing crusade, had no beef after his fifth try to crash the magic pitching circle failed Friday night.

As a matter of fact, Cleveland's 43-year-old Wynn left after six innings and a five-hit pitching stint against the Chicago White Sox more or less of his own accord. And, it turned out, he was taken off the hook as the Indians rallied in the ninth for a 4-3 victory.

Wynn, who returned to the baseball wars in Tribe warpaint June 21, had a great duel going for six innings with 22-year-old Dave Debusschere, seeking his first major league victory.

Wynn, yielding to a pinch batter in the seventh and trailing 3-2, explained: "For five innings, I had good stuff and was getting the ball across the way I wanted. Then, I started getting tired and told Birdie Tebbetts, and he took me out.

"I'm gradually working into shape where I can pitch with only four or five days rest and be ready whenever Birdie wants me to go.

"I thought I did pretty good, although I didn't have the stuff here I had a week ago in my first crack with Cleveland against the Sox." Wynn lost to Chicago 2-0 a week before on Ron Hansen's two-run home run in the ninth at Cleveland.

Jo Ann Prentice Eyes 1st Victory On Pro Golf Tour

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Jo Ann Prentice of Columbia, S.C., never has won a tournament on the ladies professional golfers tour, but today may be the day in the third and final round of the 54-hole Carvel Open.

Jo Ann fired a five-under-par 67 for a tournament record in Friday's second round at the Tam O'Shanter club to climb within two strokes of Judy Kimball of Sioux City, Iowa, the leader at 139. This was seven strokes better than her first round and another 34-33 probably would be enough to win her first tournament.

Jo Ann needed only 26 putts for her 67 as she posted six birdies to tie Marilynn Smith, Tequesta, Fla. for the runner-up spot at 141. Miss Smith, the first round leader, shot a 71 and missed a first place tie with Miss Kimball when she bogied the par 4 18th.

Frankfort Wins, 6-3

Frankfort banged out eight hits to defeat Newell, 6-3, in a Junior Division game of the South Side League Friday at Frankfort. Newell was limited to four hits by Cox of Frankfort. Patterson was the losing pitcher and Cox the winner.

Steubenville's Watson Wins In Senior Golf Play

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Steubenville's John C. Watson proved as steady in coolish temperatures that followed a morning rain Friday as he had been in 90-degree weather the day before, and he has the Ohio Seniors Golf crown to show for his consistency.

First round leader in the 36-hole, two-day event with a 75, Watson was one of four golfers who bettered that with 74s on the final 18. His 149 total put him two strokes ahead of defending champion Robert Bell of Worthington, who strung together 77-74—151.

Watson is a 59-year-old stockbroker who hadn't won a major title before copping this event for men age 55 and up.

Dave Rose of Cleveland with 78-74—152 and Richard Besst of New Philadelphia, a former champion, with 76-78—154 finished third and fourth in the competition at Miami Valley Golf Club's 6,648-yard, par 71 course.

Kathy Newton's Winner Of Ohio Golf Tournament

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The crown of Ohio's women golfers rests on the head of Miss Kathy Newton of Cleveland after eight years of trying.

Miss Newton took the Ohio Women's Amateur Golf Tournament Friday by defeating 18-year-old Martha Kosar of Cuyahoga Falls, 7 and 6, in match play at Brookside Country club here.

Miss Kosar, a sophomore at Kent State University, was playing her first state tournament, never having been past the quarterfinals. For Miss Newton, dean of girls at Kirtland High School, it was the eighth attempt at the championship. She was runner-up in the 1961 match.

Mrs. John B. Whitacre of Canton, winner of the 1962 tournament and defending champion, was defeated in Tuesday's opening round.

Almost Like Catching Barehanded

Instead Of 'Golden Glove', Maz Has Tattered Leather

By LOU PRATO

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Because of his adroit fielding, Bill Mazeroski, the reticent second baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is known throughout the National League as the "Golden Glove."

He should be called the "Calloused Kid."

For the tattered piece of leather that Mazeroski trustingly uses to spear the line drives of Henry Aaron—and scoop up the awesome grounders of Bob Buhl—can be described as a "glove" only by stretching one's imagination.

"It just feels like part of my hand," Mazeroski says, a smile crossing his face. "It looks like a couple of pieces of worn-out leather. It's thin, there's no padding. And it's ripped in the web. I have to get my wife to sew it.

"Really, it's just like catching bare handed. I get a few bone bruises, especially in the spring. I got one last year that lasted the whole season. But it's better than any glove I've ever had."

Some teammates think it is the only glove Mazeroski has ever had. They're almost right.

"When I came up to the majors," Mazeroski says, "I was using the same glove I had used all through high school and in the minors. It wasn't quite as worn-out as this one but I had to hold it together with wire."

Sam Narron, the Pirate bullpen coach, was aghast when he saw what the innocent rookie was using and benevolently presented him a new glove.

That was in July, 1956. For the next 3½ years, thanks in part to Narron's philanthrophy, Mazeroski emerged as the best second baseman in the league. But by 1960, the glove had become battle scarred.

"So, I took it home and put it away," Maz says. "It was pretty well shot by then and I had been breaking in another glove. I used that glove all through '60."

Of course, as all Yankee chauvinists tearfully recall, 1960 was the year of the Mazeroski. Who — especially Ralph Terry—can ever forget a jubilant Mazeroski galloping around third in the ninth inning of the seventh World Series game, a mob surging toward him, after he had blasted a home run that gave the Pirates the world championship.

"After I hit that homer I came back to the dugout to get my glove," he says, "but somebody had scooped it off the dugout steps. So, I got my old glove out again and I've been using it ever since."

Farmer Payout Unchanged

Hogs Led General Farm Prices To Small Boost

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hogs led the general farm prices to a small increase between mid - May and mid-June, as prices farmers paid for goods and services remained unchanged.

But wheat prices took an 18-per cent tumble, largely in response to the 1963 crop loan price support, which will be $1.82 a bushel compared with $2 for last year's crop.

With farmers stabilizing hog production at last year's level, and with a decline in marketings during late May and early June, hog prices advanced 12 per cent. But prices of beef cattle held unchanged.

The price actions were reported by the Agriculture Department in a market survey yesterday which said farm prices as a whole in mid-June were at 77 per cent of the parity price goal of federal farm programs, the same as a month earlier and compared with 78 per cent a year ago.

The mid-June farm price level was 1 per cent above a year earlier. This level was 241 per cent of the 1910-14 base average. The level of prices paid by farmers was at a record high, 311 per cent of the 1910-14 average.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Livestock farmers continue to buy heavily of young, unfattened feeder cattle and calves despite the relatively unfavorable prices of slaughter cattle.

An Agriculture Department livestock market review said today that current price levels for feeder cattle as compared with those for slaughter cattle are not favorable for profitable feeding operations.

"But apparently many feeders are hopeful that slaughter cattle prices will advance during the coming months," the review said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Soil Conservation Service reported today more than twice as much farm land in the Great Plains was damaged by wind erosion during the year ending May 31 than a year earlier.

Acreage damaged during the past 12-month period totaled 3,049,000 acres compared with 1,430,000 in the previous period. Damage this past year included 1,891,000 acres in the southern Great Plains and 1,157,000 in the northern Great Plains.

Colorado suffered the most with damage to 1,050,000 acres. North Dakota was next with 687,000 and Texas third with 393,000.

Home Run Baker Taken By Death

TRAPPE, Md. (AP) — John Franklin (Home Run) Baker, a baseball slugger of the "dead ball" era, died Friday at the age of 77.

The Maryland farm boy led the American League in home runs four consecutive years (1911-14) and finished with a 12-year career batting average of .308. He was named to Baseball's Hall of Fame in 1955.

Baker suffered his second stroke in two years earlier this month.

The former star of the Philadelphia Athletics and New York Yankees suffered a slight stroke in September 1961, and a relapse Oct. 20.

BASEBALL HEROES

PITCHING — Warren Spahn, Braves, retired 19 men in order and wound up with three-hitter and 58th career shutout in 1-0 victory over Los Angeles that gave 43-year-old left-hander his first triumph over Dodgers on their field in 15 years.

BATTING — Harmon Killebrew, Twins, led Minnesota to 11-4 and 10-3 doubleheader sweep over Washington by collecting six hits, including his 17th homer, and driving in five runs.

The largest American cattle ranch in history was the one operated by the Capitol Syndicate in Texas in the late 19th century. This giant spread covered 3,050,000 acres and it took 1,500 miles of fencing to keep the 150,000 head of cattle on their home range and 600 windmills to keep them from getting thirsty.

Boat

409 Jefferson St., Newell and Byron R. Eells of Sunset Dr., Calcutta.

Eells told police he had halted in a line of traffic on Broadway when Triplett started forward and then backed into him, damaging the left front parking light and headlight and denting the hood.

Triplett, who was cited by Patrolman Paul Blevins for driving under the influence of alcohol, claimed he had halted when struck in the rear. He posted a $500 bond pending a hearing in Municipal Court.

And what happened to the boat? Firemen said they found a man identified as Kenny Lane of Canton sound asleep and towed the boat to the Ohio Valley Boat Club dock near Ralstons Crossing.

Bill On New Judges Due Further Study

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The bill to give ten counties additional common pleas judges in the Ohio Legislature has been held over for a conference committee to effect a compromise. The legislation will get further consideration when the Legislature returns for a windup July 10.

The bill provides for one additional judge in Licking, Clermont, Lake and Lucas counties; four in Cuyahoga and two each in Hamilton and Montgomery counties.

Originally, provision was made for one new judge in Trumbull County, but that one was deleted in the Senate. This deletion couldn't get House approval, throwing the bill back for a conference committee.

"Euzkara", the language of the Basques, colorful inhabitants of seven provinces in Spain and France, is considered one of the most difficult in the world to learn. It is so difficult that no foreigner has ever learned to speak it fluently and no one has ever mastered its eight separate dialects. Its vocabulary and syntax have puzzled linguists for centuries.

House Test Expected For Shelter Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's $175-million fallout shelter program—its legacy that of a legislative stepchild—appears headed for a test on the House floor.

But the man who would be in charge of guiding civil defense legislation through the House conceded today it would take an all-out campaign to win approval.

And the administration's civil defense boss, while optimistic about prospects for House passage of the measure, said its chances in the Senate are dim.

That's the situation after five weeks of civil defense hearings before a House Armed Services sub-committee headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La.

Hebert said the subcommittee will resume executive-session hearings July 10, taking secret testimony from Pentagon officials before it decides what to do about the legislation.

Hebert himself indicates he's for the measure. With millions of lives potentially at stake, he said, if Congress errs, it should be in the direction of caution. Hebert would be floor manager of any civil defense bill sent to the House by the Armed Services Committee.

The bill would authorize $175 million to provide federal incentive payments to public and non-profit institutions which build public fallout shelters.

It also calls for shelter construction in all federal buildings.

Bert Teeters, Veteran Ohio Editor, Dies

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO (AP)—Ohio newspaperdom, the Springfield community and a host of friends including Gov. James A. Rhodes felt a keen sense of loss when they received the news Friday night that long-time Springfield newspaper editor Bert A. Teeters had died.

Teeters, who was with Springfield Newspapers, Inc., from the time he finished World War I service, was the victim of a massive hemorrhage in Columbus' University Hospital Friday afternoon. He died with his wife, Katheryn, at his side.

The 68-year-old journalism and community leader, managing editor and editor of afternoon, morning and Sunday papers — The Daily News, The Sun and the News-Sun—had been ailing with emphysema. He entered the hospital June 19, had surgery and seemed to be recuperating when he was stricken.

Teeters took part in many civic campaigns and is credited with personally launching the one that brought Springfield a city hospital in the 1930s. The first Community Leadership Award given by Wittenberg University went to Teeters in 1959.

He was active in many organizations, including the American Society of Newspaper Editors, The Associated Press Society of Ohio and Sigma Delta Chi journalistic society.

Gov. Rhodes commented that great journalist in the passing of my personal friend for over 30 years, Bert Teeters. . . his philosophy of life was what was good for Springfield was good for Ohio and the nation. I shall miss him more than eloquent words can express. . ."

Besides his widow, he leaves a daughter, Karen, who has just finished her freshman year of college.

The funeral is scheduled for 10 a. m. Tuesday at St. Teresa Church here. Burial will be in Springfield's Calvary Cemetery.

LISBON — Articles of incorporation of the Catholic Service Bureau as a non-profit organization were read at the meeting of the Advisory Board Thursday evening at St. George's Rectory.

Miss Mary Catherine Donahue reported she served 32 cases involving 78 children — 10 in institutions, seven in foster homes, six in adoptive homes, three with relatives and 52 in their own homes.

Applications were received for Fr. Kane's Camp at Lake Milton and the board sent an application to be included in the East Liverpool Community Fund but no reply has been received.

Drivers Under 21 Facing Stricter Law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — All drivers under 21 years of age will come under the control of a stricter licensing law starting Sept. 27.

Gov. James A. Rhodes has signed into law, effective in 90 days, an act placing 18 to 21-year-old drivers under the state's junior probationary licensing law which now covers 16 and 17 - year-olds.

The new probationary license law requires automatic suspension for a year of the license of a driver who is guilty of three moving traffic violations in a two-year period.

The 18 to 21-year - old drivers now get adult operators' licenses and come under the point system for removing habitual violators from the state's highways.

David Mainwaring, Motor Vehicles Bureau registrar, said he plans to confer with Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe about application of the new law to 18 to 21-year - old drivers who now have adult licenses.

The bill was one of 13 acts signed into law by the governor.

100th Anniversary To Mark Epic Battle Of Gettysburg

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Thousands of visitors began streaming into this once-tiny crossroads town today for the 100th anniversary of the epic Battle of Gettysburg.

The three day commemoration is expected to attract a quarter of a million people to the lush green fields, where 100 years ago, 51,000 Americans were killed, wounded or captured in the battle that virtually decided the Civil War.

Local hotels and motels have been booked solid for months.

Even Gettysburg stores and restaurants are in the spirit of the event, dressing their waitresses and sales girls in full-length calico dresses and bonnets to recapture Civil War atmosphere.

The town itself is decorated with flags and red, white and blue bunting. Souvenir shops are selling everything from ash tray maps of the battlefield to Union Army hardtack.

Twenty-seven states and the District of Columbia will take part in the commemoration.

The program includes pageants of folklore, speeches from distinguished personalities such as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, a mammoth parade, the dedication of two new state monuments and many displays and exhibits.

The highpoint comes Wednesday, when 1,100 "troops" from North and South join to re-enact the famous Pickett's Charge.

OFF THE RECORD

"My husband's signature? Don't be silly—if he approved, I'd get the money from him."

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Saturday, June 29th, the 180th day of 1963. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1837, the great American educator, Horace Mann, was appointed secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Education. Mann, who abandoned a prosperous career for educational work, made a series of annual reports that served as beacons for the course of popular American education.

On this date—

In 1776, the Virginia state constitution was adopted and Patrick Henry was made governor.

In 1946, Trieste was the scene of rioting between Italians and Yugoslavs.

Ten years ago ... Jordan agreed to take measures to prevent the infiltration of Jordanians into Israel after two weeks of increasing tension over border incidents.

Five years ago ... The United States demanded the immediate return of nine American airmen aboard a U.S. transport forced down inside the Soviet Union.

One year ago ... Peru was without a president when it was disclosed that none of the three principal candidates in the recent presidential elections received the one-third of the valid votes required for election.

Junior Editors Quiz on PHOTOSYNTHESIS

QUESTION: Are all plants which produce food by photosynthesis green?

ANSWER: We have illustrated the photosynthesis process by showing a green leaf as if it were a tiny factory, taking in materials from the air and the trunk or stem of the plant, which brings them up from the roots. Minute green specks in the leaf cells called chlorophyll then use energy taken from sunlight to manufacture a kind of sugar which is the basic substance of food. Plants grow because they get nourishment from these sugars. We get them from eating plants and animals, which also eat plants. So, it is true that these tiny leaf factories are the most important ones in the world.

Specks of chlorophyll are the workers in these factories. Leaves look green because chlorophyll is a green substance. Yet not all leaves are green, think of the ornamental trees one often sees with gold or purplish red leaves and house plants whose leaves may be yellow, red, blue or brown. But green chlorophyll cells are still at work in such leaves; it is just that there are other color pigments present as well which give the leaf its color appearance.

FOR YOU TO DO: In some part of the garden where it won't do any harm, cover a small patch of grass with a board or stone. Then look underneath it a few days later. You will see the green color is going out of the grass. This proves that without light the little chlorophyll factories have to close down.

Beaver Told CAP Primary Votes 'Void'

BEAVER — The County Board of Elections is right back where it started in trying to determine what to do with statewide candidates nominated by the Constitutional Assembly Party.

State officials, who would not rule one way or another before the primary, when the controversy arose, now have told W. B. Smith, county elections director:

"In the matter of Judges Wright and Erwin, under the provisions of the law, the Constitutional Assembly Party was only entitled to nominate candidates for offices within Beaver County.

"Therefore, in our opinion the votes they cast for Judges Wright and Erwin are void." The two judges are candidates for State Superior Court.

The puzzle over what to do with the statewide offices was the reason county commissioners did not proceed with printing of ballots before the primary because all ballots must be uniform. Neither judge had filed on the CAP ticket.

The CAP then asked County Court to order the commissioners to print the ballots. Judges Robert E. McCreary and Morgan H. Sohn ruled the offices had to be listed and ordered the ballots printed.

The county judges now have instructed Smith to send letters along with copies of their opinion to Judges Wright and Erwin asking their comment or recommendation.

The question can pose a problem for the statewide candidates since the few hundred votes they may receive in the general election could be decisive if the vote is close.

Firemen Ready To Inspect Glenmoor Farm Properties

Glenmoor area farmers have an opportunity to help cut fire losses by participating in National Farm Safety Week July 21-27, Harry Reckner, state fire prevention inspector, points out.

Reckner and Frank Riser, fire chief of Glenmoor, will be available to conduct free inspections for fire hazards on the farms and will distribute safety literature during the observance.

"Farms are high-hazard industries, with most of the industry hazards found there — welding, burning and cutting, electrical motors, flammable liquids, grinders, compressors and chemicals," Reckner points out.

"Often, due to lack of fire inspection, distance from fire departments and an inadequate water supplies, the situation is serious," he adds.

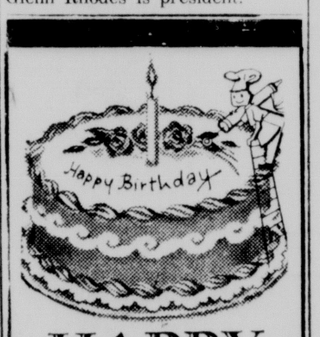

This year's fire safety slogan observes that fire is easy to prevent, hard to stop, and inspection plus correction equals protection. It ties in with the rural fire safety program.

Nearly one in 10 of the 8,700 farm residents killed each year in accidents on the farm die in fire. Fire losses have increased from an average of $74.1 million annually in 1940-44 to $162 million. More than half of the farm fires occur in the home.

Farmers desiring free inspections for fire hazards may contact Reckner at FU. 5-1493, and the fire chief at FU. 6-6034. Reckner said there have been no barn fires in Glenmoor this year.

Former Paris Dancer Due At Vice Hearing

LONDON (AP)—A shapely redhead who once danced in a Paris nightclub was expected to be called today as a surprise witness in the sensation-packed vice hearing of Dr. Stephen Ward.

The prosecution told 23-year-old Ronna Ricardo only 10 hours before the Ward hearing opened Friday that she was wanted as a witness against the 50-year-old society osteopath.

Ward faces eight charges which include running a call girl stable for upper crust Britons and living off the earnings of playgirl Christine Keeler and her blonde roommate, Mandy Rice-Davies.

Miss Ricardo waited in the wings Friday while auburn-haired Christine and Mandy held the stage with sensational accounts of sex in London's governmental, diplomatic and high society circles.

The story seemed certain to cause as big an uproar as the original disclosures which caused the downfall of former War Minister John D. Profumo and nearly toppled Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government.

It was Ward who introduced Christine to Profumo and Soviet naval attache Evgeny Ivanov. It was also Ward who broke the scandal involving the three-way sex relationship of Miss Keeler, Profumo and Ivanov, who was generally regarded as a Soviet intelligence agent.

This is the second day of the hearing before Magistrate Leo Gradwell, who will decide whether Ward should go for trial at the Old Bailey, London's central criminal court. The hearing is expected to last five days.

Lions At Cumberland Advance Fair Plans

NEW CUMBERLAND — The Lions Club is advancing plans for its annual Community Free Fair and will expand this year's event Aug. 26 through Labor Day Sept. 2 into a Hancock County Centennial Fair.

Work has already started on construction of a permanent building to house display booths for merchants, industry and institutions at the local athletic field.

Thousands attended the fair last year. The committee includes William Murray, chairman, and Gerald Jones and Squire John D. Herron, co-chairmen.

Rogers Store Sold To Pair By Ruth Cope

Mrs. Ruth Cope turned over the keys to her Rogers grocery store today to new owners and started retirement after 44 years in the business.

She and her late husband, J. O. Cope, purchased the store on Walnut St. in 1919. He died in 1942 and she continued the business.

A Review correspondent, Mrs. Cope said she is looking forward to her "rocking chair in the kitchen" and writing more frequently to her daughter, Miss Agnes Cope, dean of girls at Lakewood High School. Mrs. Cope purchased a home here last year.

Mr. and Mrs. George Heller, local residents, have purchased the store and will operate it as Heller's Market.

Mr. and Mrs. Heller attended the Heller family reunion Wednesday at Kittanning.

Miss Ele Ilene Lower is vacationing in Atlantic City.

Mrs. Emma Harter of Youngstown is visiting local relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woodburn, who have been patients in the South Side Hospital at Youngstown after an automobile accident, have been removed to the home of Mrs. Isa Blackburn of Boardman.

Beaver Told CAP Primary Votes 'Void'

BEAVER — The County Board of Elections is right back where it started in trying to determine what to do with statewide candidates nominated by the Constitutional Assembly Party.

State officials, who would not rule one way or another before the primary, when the controversy arose, now have told W. B. Smith, county elections director:

"In the matter of Judges Wright and Erwin, under the provisions of the law, the Constitutional Assembly Party was only entitled to nominate candidates for offices within Beaver County.

"Therefore, in our opinion the votes they cast for Judges Wright and Erwin are void." The two judges are candidates for State Superior Court.

The puzzle over what to do with the statewide offices was the reason county commissioners did not proceed with printing of ballots before the primary because all ballots must be uniform. Neither judge had filed on the CAP ticket.

The CAP then asked County Court to order the commissioners to print the ballots. Judges Robert E. McCreary and Morgan H. Sohn ruled the offices had to be listed and ordered the ballots printed.

The county judges now have instructed Smith to send letters along with copies of their opinion to Judges Wright and Erwin asking their comment or recommendation.

The question can pose a problem for the statewide candidates since the few hundred votes they may receive in the general election could be decisive if the vote is close.

Firemen Ready To Inspect Glenmoor Farm Properties

Glenmoor area farmers have an opportunity to help cut fire losses by participating in National Farm Safety Week July 21-27, Harry Reckner, state fire prevention inspector, points out.

Reckner and Frank Riser, fire chief of Glenmoor, will be available to conduct free inspections for fire hazards on the farms and will distribute safety literature during the observance.

"Farms are high-hazard industries, with most of the industry hazards found there — welding, burning and cutting, electrical motors, flammable liquids, grinders, compressors and chemicals," Reckner points out.

"Often, due to lack of fire inspection, distance from fire departments and an inadequate water supplies, the situation is serious," he adds.

This year's fire safety slogan observes that fire is easy to prevent, hard to stop, and inspection plus correction equals protection. It ties in with the rural fire safety program.

Nearly one in 10 of the 8,700 farm residents killed each year in accidents on the farm die in fire. Fire losses have increased from an average of $74.1 million annually in 1940-44 to $162 million. More than half of the farm fires occur in the home.

Farmers desiring free inspections for fire hazards may contact Reckner at FU. 5-1493, and the fire chief at FU. 6-6034. Reckner said there have been no barn fires in Glenmoor this year.

Former Paris Dancer Due At Vice Hearing

LONDON (AP)—A shapely redhead who once danced in a Paris nightclub was expected to be called today as a surprise witness in the sensation-packed vice hearing of Dr. Stephen Ward.

The prosecution told 23-year-old Ronna Ricardo only 10 hours before the Ward hearing opened Friday that she was wanted as a witness against the 50-year-old society osteopath.

Ward faces eight charges which include running a call girl stable for upper crust Britons and living off the earnings of playgirl Christine Keeler and her blonde roommate, Mandy Rice-Davies.

Miss Ricardo waited in the wings Friday while auburn-haired Christine and Mandy held the stage with sensational accounts of sex in London's governmental, diplomatic and high society circles.

The story seemed certain to cause as big an uproar as the original disclosures which caused the downfall of former War Minister John D. Profumo and nearly toppled Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government.

It was Ward who introduced Christine to Profumo and Soviet naval attache Evgeny Ivanov. It was also Ward who broke the scandal involving the three-way sex relationship of Miss Keeler, Profumo and Ivanov, who was generally regarded as a Soviet intelligence agent.

This is the second day of the hearing before Magistrate Leo Gradwell, who will decide whether Ward should go for trial at the Old Bailey, London's central criminal court. The hearing is expected to last five days.

Lions At Cumberland Advance Fair Plans

NEW CUMBERLAND — The Lions Club is advancing plans for its annual Community Free Fair and will expand this year's event Aug. 26 through Labor Day Sept. 2 into a Hancock County Centennial Fair.

Work has already started on construction of a permanent building to house display booths for merchants, industry and institutions at the local athletic field.

Thousands attended the fair last year. The committee includes William Murray, chairman, and Gerald Jones and Squire John D. Herron, co-chairmen.

Rogers Store Sold To Pair By Ruth Cope

Mrs. Ruth Cope turned over the keys to her Rogers grocery store today to new owners and started retirement after 44 years in the business.

She and her late husband, J. O. Cope, purchased the store on Walnut St. in 1919. He died in 1942 and she continued the business.

A Review correspondent, Mrs. Cope said she is looking forward to her "rocking chair in the kitchen" and writing more frequently to her daughter, Miss Agnes Cope, dean of girls at Lakewood High School. Mrs. Cope purchased a home here last year.

Mr. and Mrs. George Heller, local residents, have purchased the store and will operate it as Heller's Market.

Mr. and Mrs. Heller attended the Heller family reunion Wednesday at Kittanning.

Miss Ele Ilene Lower is vacationing in Atlantic City.

Mrs. Emma Harter of Youngstown is visiting local relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woodburn, who have been patients in the South Side Hospital at Youngstown after an automobile accident, have been removed to the home of Mrs. Isa Blackburn of Boardman.

Wimbledon's setting is an ivy-covered stadium with ivy-covered traditions.

THE WHIMS OF WIMBLEDON

Even the rigid rules of the world's most snobbish tennis tournament can't repress players with penchants for such things as—gorgeous golden panties

By BILL SURFACE

An edge of Karol Fageros' golden panties is visible beneath white ones Wimbledon decreed she must wear.

IN A WORLD that is increasingly familiar with fast-moving change, one of Great Britain's hallowed traditions continues supreme—the snob appeal of a very special tennis tournament currently being played in the London suburb of Wimbledon.

Officially named the All-England Tennis Championships, Wimbledon is governed by rules so rigid that Gertrude "Gussie" Moran (of lace-panty fame) calls the 95-year-old tournament "czaristic and a blow to democracy."

Players' uniforms have been checked for proper starch, and newspapers have been advised to capitalize the "T" in The Wimbledon Championships. Even today, the 500 invited tennis players are chauffeured in Rolls-Royces during the tournament to insure dignity.

British society, from Queen Elizabeth down, finds attendance a must. Places near the royal area in the 17,000-seat ivy-covered concrete stadium are immeasurably precious. Box-seat tickets are included in wills, and prices are listed on the London Stock Exchange.

But the pomp of Wimbledon's annual two weeks of tennis is always enlivened by the wild capers of devil-may-care players. As historians note, the first tournaments at Wimbledon's present arena were "defaced by scandals." An American, John Hennessey, was threatened with expulsion for wearing "shocking striped pants" instead of the standard white ones. Randolph Lycett, an Australian star who did not like the tea stands, planted a pint of gin on the side lines and grabbed snorts between sets.

Jack Kramer, a Wimbledon champion, says: "There are two groups that make Wimbledon such a good side show—the headline hunters and those hit by stage fright. Tennis players aren't used to such crowds, let alone the king or queen out there inspecting them.

"Just as we began playing in the 1947 finals, my opponent and I were told that King George was coming out to see us and to stop the instant we heard the signal. I was so electrified that I couldn't have played worse if I was handcuffed. But it didn't keep me from winning; my opponent was scared, too."

ONE OF THE most embarrassed players in Wimbledon's history was Nicola Pietrangeli. In 1960, Nicola became so excited after upsetting Barry Mackay of the United States (making him the first Italian to reach Wimbledon's finals) that he threw his racket high in the air, shook Mackay's hand, and as he pivoted toward the audience, his racket fell right on his head!

Wimbledon's most recent problems have been good-looking girls and the revolution in tennis clothing. That fad began in 1949 when Gussie Moran—19, shapely, and courting a movie career—appeared in a tight tee shirt and white lace panties under a short ballerina skirt. When an entry clerk questioned her lace, she said: "People here see your underwear for two weeks, so you might as well have them see something with lace on it. Besides, it helps my tennis."

In Wimbledon's bylaws, there was no restriction against lace panties, and Gussie became an overnight celebrity. The fans enjoyed it, but it was understood that Queen Elizabeth (now the Queen Mother) would not attend during the "panty scandal." Gussie wore plain panties during the Queen's attendance. And she lost.

In 1958, Karol Fageros, a tall blonde from Miami, entered Wimbledon as the self-styled "Golden Goddess of Tennis." A better model than player, she wore a tight knit jersey and gold-lamé panties trimmed in black lace.

The panties were promptly banned. But there was no way to stop rumors that Karol, playing in white-lace panties, would do a strip tease in retaliation. Karol didn't, but she shocked some tennis people much more: she won a match. Her opponent, Silvana Lazzarino, blamed the loss on the fuss created by photographers taking pictures of the anticipated "show."

Last year, after two female players tried to outdo Karol's costume by wearing leopard skins and mink trimmings, Wimbledon finally announced that only plain white uniforms would be allowed. But the whims of Wimbledon probably will never cease. Gardnar Mulloy, a star of the 1940s, had his jacket monogrammed: "If You Can't Beat Me, You Need Lessons." And an American girl wore plain white panties—with a Confederate flag sewed on the seat.

The Surprise Bag

By Bea Kiles

Before the start of a long family automobile trip, get a large grocery bag and mark in big letters on one side of it the names of certain towns you will pass through. Then make surprise packages of things the children would like—a comic book, a jump-up toy, sticks of gum, lollipops, an envelope containing money for ice-cream cones or colas.

Label each package with the name of one of the towns listed on the bag. Fasten the bag to the back of the front seat and tell the children to watch for the towns on the bag, and when one is sighted, they may reach into the bag for the corresponding package.

ANSWERS TO THE BILL OF RIGHTS QUIZ

1. No. A California court held that, under the First Amendment, teachers are entitled to the same rights of free speech as other citizens. To fire a teacher for speaking out would deter him from exercising his right, and the Constitution does not permit such deterrents.

2. No. Freedom of the press is guaranteed by the First Amendment. Seized literature at customs must be taken before a Federal Court for formal proceedings. Article I of the Bill of Rights protects not only unorthodox and controversial ideas but also opinions offensive to prevailing trends.

3. Yes. The detective violated the Fourth Amendment, which gives citizens the right to be protected against unreasonable search and seizure. A house or apartment cannot be entered without a search warrant. And mere suspicion does not justify issuance of a warrant. The fact that evidence was found does not make the invasion valid. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that admission of such evidence in any court, state or Federal, would violate a citizen's right of privacy under the Fourth Amendment.

4. Yes. Eavesdropping on a conversation between a defendant and his lawyer is interference with the right of counsel, which includes the liberty to communicate freely and confidentially with one's attorney. In a similar case, the U.S. Court of Appeals held that interference with "assistance of counsel" was a violation of the Sixth Amendment.

5. Yes. The courts have consistently invalidated local ordinances barring handbill distribution as unconstitutional infringements of free speech. As a Chicago municipal-court judge put it, "The welfare of the nation is more important than the littering of a public place."

6. Yes. The First Amendment guarantees Rockwell the right to express his opinions. A New York court, in affirming his right to freedom of speech, said: "If the speaker incites others to unlawful action, he may be punished . . . but this is not to be confused with unlawful action by others who seek unlawfully to suppress or punish the speaker. The unpopularity of views, their shocking quality, and even their alarming impact is not enough. Otherwise, the preacher of any strange doctrine could be stopped."

7. No. When Mr. X took his case to court, a Federal judge ruled that he had been denied "due process of law" under the Fifth Amendment and that under the Sixth Amendment he had the right "to be confronted with the witnesses against him."

8. Yes. The murder suspect had been denied "due process of law" under the Constitution. An important factor in the court's decision was the age of the defendant, who was too young and inexperienced to resist physical pressures to confess. By excluding forced confessions from a trial, police are deterred from using totalitarian tactics. In being illegally detained for five days without being brought before a judge, the defendant also was unaware of his legal rights, a violation of the Sixth Amendment.

9. No. The U.S. Supreme Court found unconstitutional a requirement that a sworn belief in God be a prerequisite for holding public office. The court held that the provision infringed on the individual's right to religious freedom.

10. No. The U.S. Supreme Court held that "at the very core of the Fourth Amendment stands the right of a man to retreat into his own home and there be free from unreasonable governmental intrusion."

COUNT THE FLAGS in your block on Independence Day. There'll be more television antennas, won't there?

How many men remove their hats when the flag goes by?

How many words of "The Star -Spangled Banner" do you know?

How many of your friends say grace at mealtime?

How many people kiss, except as a social gesture?

How does it happen that the simplicity of us has become self-conscious sophistication?

Is it as wrong to admit patriotism, faith, and love in public as it is to let a petticoat show—or risk sounding like a reactionary crackpot?

It must be. If we see a family in a restaurant bow its collective heads before dining, we look away in embarrassment. If we see a man place his hat over his heart for the colors, we grin a little.

We call such simplicity flag waving. We call open believers religious nuts. It's acceptable to call another "Darling" unless we mean it.

Children have simple faith, simple honesty. We take an envious delight in this innocence. To a child, his heart and his body and his inquiring little mind are all as natural as a flower in the grass.

We take care of that. Nobody can believe in Santa Claus forever. Nobody can run around with his naked faith showing all his life.

We introduce our children to the mores of a civilization where Jesus is for Sunday and the flag is for history. We love our country, perhaps, but it's not de rigueur to express it at a cocktail party.

A friend of mine wonders if we're like the Romans in the days of their decline. He suspects that we have progressed so far that the simplicity of the grape has given way to the sophistication of the wine. He thinks we're lying around on the couches of our culture, sacrificing our innocence to the lions.

Never look at the stars with a prayer in your heart. Never feel a lump in your throat when the flag goes by. Never take the hand of a friend or a beloved and say what you truly feel.

For the days of our youth are gone. We have become a nation of careful cynics.

Only our children have yet to be taught.

A Circus Star's Hospital Vow:

"I'm Going Back on the Trapeze!"

THE CEILING was white, the walls faint blue. It was a small room, and I was in a big bed. I was confused about where I was, even who I was.

Then my eyes dimly focused on something hanging from the head of the bed. It was a crucifix. From the jumble of images and distant voices came a recollection.

A nun was leaning over me, concern lining her face. She touched me gently, then fumbled at a string of beads at her side. She detached something and pressed it into my hand. "You need this now, Mary Lou," she whispered. It was the crucifix now over my bed. The nun was Mother Rose, a friend of my mother whom I hadn't seen in a long time. I was confused. Where had that idea come from?

I would slip back into unconsciousness, then awaken and look for the crucifix for reassurance in this sort of limbo. Then suddenly a distinct picture took focus in the haze.

I was swinging on a trapeze high above 2,000 spectators at the Dane County Arena in Madison, Wis. The announcer had introduced me: "The William Kay Circus proudly presents, Mary Lou Lawrence, the Hollywood Skyrocket, in a daring display . . ." The band had played its flourish, and as the spotlights pinpointed me near the roof I began the second-to-last part of my aerial act, a "roll out."

In a performer's life, probably the greatest moment is when he approaches the climax of his act, sensing he has captured his audience. I felt this. Just before, I had swung by my knees above a concrete floor 38 feet below, then slipped along the bar, catching hold at the last moment with my heels. From the darkness below, I could hear the crowd gasp and feel the tension build. It was a wonderful feeling. People go to a circus to be thrilled, and I get paid to thrill them.

I had planned my act to make the excitement mount. In the roll out, I would swing on the trapeze with one hand, then let go and execute a half turn. For a moment I would appear suspended in mid-air; just as it seemed the bar would swing out of my grasp, I would catch hold with my other hand. As a climax, I would do my "iron-jaw spin," whirling dizzily from the trapeze, holding on only with my teeth.

I don't come from a circus family as many performers do. My father has worked in the steel mills of Gary, Ind., for more than 40 years. So maybe I have a more romantic idea about being a solo aerialist in a circus. Working rhythmically in a glittering, spangled costume before kids and their parents is something I've dreamed about constantly since my mother first

To test your knowledge and appreciation of the Bill of Rights, here are 10 questions devised after consultation with a panel of constitutional experts headed by Professor Alexander Brooks of the Rutgers University Law School and Professor Thomas I. Emerson of the Yale University Law School.

To answer the questions, check either "Yes" or "No."

1. In California, a teacher at a junior college was fired for "unprofessional conduct" because he wrote a letter to a local newspaper criticizing the county public-school system. Did the college have the right to discharge him? (Yes) (No)

2. An American tourist returned from Europe with a copy of a book by Samuel Becket. The Customs Bureau, which considered the book "pornography," confiscated it, although no court had yet judged it "obscene." Was the Customs Bureau justified in its action? (Yes) (No)

3. In Ohio, a police detective received an anonymous phone call indicating that a Mr. and Mrs. Smith were dope addicts. On the strength of the tip, the detective went to the Smith apartment. When Mrs. Smith refused to admit him, the detective broke down the door and found narcotics in a bureau drawer. Did he violate any of Mrs. Smith's freedoms? (Yes) (No)

4. Mrs. Jane Brown was arrested on a charge of passing valuable information to the Communists. She was permitted to consult her lawyer in a visitors' room at the jail. The room was "bugged"—wired with a listening device so that Federal agents could overhear the conversation. Were any of her rights infringed? (Yes) (No)

5. During the 1960 Presidential campaign, a young man handed out leaflets urging citizens to vote for neither candidate. A local law stated that a permit was necessary before handbills could be distributed, to avoid littering the streets. Was the young man within his rights, despite the ordinance? (Yes) (No)

6. George Lincoln Rockwell, the leader of the American Nazi Party, was denied permission to hold a rally in a New York park on the ground that the meeting would be "an invitation to riot and disorder." Despite the possibility of disturbance, should he have had the right to hold his public meeting? (Yes) (No)

7. Planning to travel in Europe, Mr. X applied to the State Department for his passport. His request was denied on the grounds that "confidential information" indicated he was a Communist sympathizer. The State Department refused to reveal its evidence or the source. Under the Bill of Rights, was the State Department correct in denying the passport? (Yes) (No)

8. From several clues gathered by police, it seemed fairly clear that 19-year-old Joe Doe had committed a murder. For five days, the police grilled Joe, kept him on little food and water, and wakened him in the middle of the night for further questioning. Finally, Joe confessed involuntarily, and later evidence proved him guilty. Had he been cut off from an inalienable right? (Yes) (No)

9. In Maryland, a notary public was denied a commission because he refused to swear that he believed in God. Do you think the action against him was warranted? (Yes) (No)

10. To obtain evidence against suspected gamblers, police in Washington, D.C., attached earphones to a foot-long, pencil-thin metal spike driven through the wall of the building where the gamblers met. Did the police have the right to use such methods to fight crime? (Yes) (No)

NOW COMPARE your reactions with the answers on page 14. If you hit at least seven correct answers, you have a reasonable understanding of the Bill of Rights.

"Whatever your score," comments Professor Emerson, "to answer these questions intelligently requires some appreciation of why our forefathers insisted on putting the Bill of Rights into the Constitution. On first thought, many of us look only for immediate results and don't realize the dangers of overriding individual or minority rights. It takes a mature and civilized people to make a democratic system work."

Still remaining is the problem of how the Bill of Rights concepts can be conveyed to upcoming generations. For concrete action, a recent workshop of social-studies teachers urged these remedies:

—To provide basic groundwork, two courses with the thread of liberty as the dominant theme should be required of all students in junior high schools.

—Throughout the school years, a positive presentation of the heritage, theory, and practice of American rights should be strengthened.

Watching the fireworks on the Fourth of July, let's not forget what we're celebrating. Our forefathers believed their rights were worth shedding blood for. As Justice Douglas has pointed out, in recent years we seem to have lost some of our appreciation for the importance of those rights.

"The American people," he says, "should be re-educated on their great inheritance." (Continued on page 14)

1. No. A California court held that, under the First Amendment, teachers are entitled to the same rights of free speech as other citizens. To fire a teacher for speaking out would deter him from exercising his right, and the Constitution does not permit such deterrents.

2. No. Freedom of the press is guaranteed by the First Amendment. Seized literature at customs must be taken before a Federal Court for formal proceedings. Article I of the Bill of Rights protects not only unorthodox and controversial ideas but also opinions offensive to prevailing trends.

3. Yes. The detective violated the Fourth Amendment, which gives citizens the right to be protected against unreasonable search and seizure. A house or apartment cannot be entered without a search warrant. And mere suspicion does not justify issuance of a warrant. The fact that evidence was found does not make the invasion valid. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that admission of such evidence in any court, state or Federal, would violate a citizen's right of privacy under the Fourth Amendment.

4. Yes. Eavesdropping on a conversation between a defendant and his lawyer is interference with the right of counsel, which includes the liberty to communicate freely and confidentially with one's attorney. In a similar case, the U.S. Court of Appeals held that interference with "assistance of counsel" was a violation of the Sixth Amendment.

5. Yes. The courts have consistently invalidated local ordinances barring handbill distribution as unconstitutional infringements of free speech. As a Chicago municipal-court judge put it, "The welfare of the nation is more important than the littering of a public place."

6. Yes. The First Amendment guarantees Rockwell the right to express his opinions. A New York court, in affirming his right to freedom of speech, said: "If the speaker incites others to unlawful action, he may be punished . . . but this is not to be confused with unlawful action by others who seek unlawfully to suppress or punish the speaker. The unpopularity of views, their shocking quality, and even their alarming impact is not enough. Otherwise, the preacher of any strange doctrine could be stopped."

7. No. When Mr. X took his case to court, a Federal judge ruled that he had been denied "due process of law" under the Fifth Amendment and that under the Sixth Amendment he had the right "to be confronted with the witnesses against him."

8. Yes. The murder suspect had been denied "due process of law" under the Constitution. An important factor in the court's decision was the age of the defendant, who was too young and inexperienced to resist physical pressures to confess. By excluding forced confessions from a trial, police are deterred from using totalitarian tactics. In being illegally detained for five days without being brought before a judge, the defendant also was unaware of his legal rights, a violation of the Sixth Amendment.

9. No. The U.S. Supreme Court found unconstitutional a requirement that a sworn belief in God be a prerequisite for holding public office. The court held that the provision infringed on the individual's right to religious freedom.

10. No. The U.S. Supreme Court held that "at the very core of the Fourth Amendment stands the right of a man to retreat into his own home and there be free from unreasonable governmental intrusion."

I was just thinking . . .

COUNT THE FLAGS in your block on Independence Day. There'll be more television antennas, won't there?

Count the people you know who have Bibles in their bookcases.

How many men remove their hats when the flag goes by?

How many words of "The Star -Spangled Banner" do you know?

How many of your friends say grace at mealtime?

How many people kiss, except as a social gesture?

How does it happen that the simplicity of us has become self-conscious sophistication?

Is it as wrong to admit patriotism, faith, and love in public as it is to let a petticoat show—or risk sounding like a reactionary crackpot?

It must be. If we see a family in a restaurant bow its collective heads before dining, we look away in embarrassment. If we see a man place his hat over his heart for the colors, we grin a little.

We call such simplicity flag waving. We call open believers religious nuts. It's acceptable to call another "Darling" unless we mean it.

Children have simple faith, simple honesty. We take an envious delight in this innocence. To a child, his heart and his body and his inquiring little mind are all as natural as a flower in the grass.

We take care of that. Nobody can believe in Santa Claus forever. Nobody can run around with his naked faith showing all his life.

We introduce our children to the mores of a civilization where Jesus is for Sunday and the flag is for history. We love our country, perhaps, but it's not de rigueur to express it at a cocktail party.

A friend of mine wonders if we're like the Romans in the days of their decline. He suspects that we have progressed so far that the simplicity of the grape has given way to the sophistication of the wine. He thinks we're lying around on the couches of our culture, sacrificing our innocence to the lions.

Never look at the stars with a prayer in your heart. Never feel a lump in your throat when the flag goes by. Never take the hand of a friend or a beloved and say what you truly feel.

For the days of our youth are gone. We have become a nation of careful cynics.

Only our children have yet to be taught.

Her dreams and body lay smashed in a brutal fall— but not her spirit

By MARY LOU LAWRENCE
as told to Jack Ryan

took me to an acrobatic dancing class when I was six years old.

Now came my queenlike moment. The trapeze arc heightened as I picked up momentum. The drum rolled and the crowd hushed; just the cries of vendors sounding hollow among the rafters. My tempo seemed right, so I began the dislocation—our word for letting go. There was the exhilarating sensation of suspension in air, then I twisted into my turn and reached out.

But there was no shoulder-jarring grasp; no abrupt halt to my spin. Just rushing space which dissolved into darkness.

I do not recall falling. I experienced no pain. My first awareness was of shadows and shapeless forms. Day by day the hodgepodge began to arrange itself, and I realized I was in a hospital, badly injured. I had taken a real good "buster"—right smack on a concrete floor.

My first thought was about my parents. I could hear my mother saying: "Why do you want to be an aerialist? You're a wonderful acrobatic dancer —why go up there?" I could never answer her because I have never been afraid in my work, just very much alive. But how Mom and Dad had worried, and now . . .

THEN I THOUGHT about Thunder Von Blitzen. He's my German shepherd. Together, in a trailer, we tour the circuses, town to town, as I do my handstands on a 100-foot pole at outdoor shows, or the trapeze act when under cover. Towns are never lonely for circus people; we have too many friends and old associates. But between towns the journey can be lonely, and Thunder is my protector and confidant. Now whom could he depend on?

It was much later when I thought about myself, but when I tried to ask how badly hurt I was, I could not form all the words. Somebody must have seen my terror and said: "You'll be all right. It will take time."

But would I be all right—or only half right? I looked at my body. It was rigid in bandages. My reflexes? I could guess how bad they were: my simplest thoughts could not follow in sequence for very long.

My body and reflexes have given me the most wonderful job in the world —they and my teachers. Without them I would have nothing.

From that first dancing class, I knew I wanted to be a performer. As a kid I'd toured with a group called the Comets, and after graduating from Merrillville High School I joined a circus tumbling act. At a show I would be just like a kid—I'd run out to watch the aerialists soar high above us like special people in an unattainable world. One day at the Shrine Circus in St. Louis, years of longing got the better of my timidity, and I blurted out to an aerialist: "I'd like to work out on your rigging, okay?"

A Circus Star's Hospital Vow:

"I'm Going Back on the Trapeze!"

THE CEILING was white, the walls faint blue. It was a small room, and I was in a big bed. I was confused about where I was, even who I was.

Then my eyes dimly focused on something hanging from the head of the bed. It was a crucifix. From the jumble of images and distant voices came a recollection.

A nun was leaning over me, concern lining her face. She touched me gently, then fumbled at a string of beads at her side. She detached something and pressed it into my hand. "You need this now, Mary Lou," she whispered. It was the crucifix now over my bed. The nun was Mother Rose, a friend of my mother whom I hadn't seen in a long time. I was confused. Where had that idea come from?

I would slip back into unconsciousness, then awaken and look for the crucifix for reassurance in this sort of limbo. Then suddenly a distinct picture took focus in the haze.

I was swinging on a trapeze high above 2,000 spectators at the Dane County Arena in Madison, Wis. The announcer had introduced me: "The William Kay Circus proudly presents, Mary Lou Lawrence, the Hollywood Skyrocket, in a daring display . . ." The band had played its flourish, and as the spotlights pinpointed me near the roof I began the second-to-last part of my aerial act, a "roll out."

In a performer's life, probably the greatest moment is when he approaches the climax of his act, sensing he has captured his audience. I felt this. Just before, I had swung by my knees above a concrete floor 38 feet below, then slipped along the bar, catching hold at the last moment with my heels. From the darkness below, I could hear the crowd gasp and feel the tension build. It was a wonderful feeling. People go to a circus to be thrilled, and I get paid to thrill them.

I had planned my act to make the excitement mount. In the roll out, I would swing on the trapeze with one hand, then let go and execute a half turn. For a moment I would appear suspended in mid-air; just as it seemed the bar would swing out of my grasp, I would catch hold with my other hand. As a climax, I would do my "iron-jaw spin," whirling dizzily from the trapeze, holding on only with my teeth.

I don't come from a circus family as many performers do. My father has worked in the steel mills of Gary, Ind., for more than 40 years. So maybe I have a more romantic idea about being a solo aerialist in a circus. Working rhythmically in a glittering, spangled costume before kids and their parents is something I've dreamed about constantly since my mother first

SPECIAL QUIZ FOR INDEPENDENCE DAY

HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW THE BILL OF RIGHTS?

A poll of high-school students revealed a poor understanding of this famous document which guarantees our individual liberties; see how well you do on this test

By THEODORE IRWIN

MOST INDEPENDENCE DAY speakers will mention the Bill of Rights. It's a tradition. But unfortunately it's almost equally certain that a large part of their audience will not really know what they are talking about.

The Bill of Rights, which forms the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, is the foundation stone of American democracy; it states our essential rights which cannot (or should not) be violated by the government or our fellow citizens. Yet this 462-word document is still widely misunderstood 171 years after its adoption.

For instance, there's an "appalling disregard" for the Bill of Rights in the curricula of the nation's high schools, according to the National Assembly on Teaching the Principles of the Bill of Rights, a newly formed group of which Supreme Court Justices William J. Brennan, Jr., and William O. Douglas are honorary chairmen.

When 12,000 high-school students across the nation were polled by the Purdue Opinion Panel on their attitudes toward everyday problems involving civil rights, the results revealed a serious lack of understanding of the basic document of our republic. These are some of the positions taken by teen-agers:

—Three out of five students favored censorship of books, newspapers, and magazines.

—Two out of five said there should be restrictions on the right to vote.

—One-fourth believed the government ought to prohibit some people from making speeches.

—One out of three was willing to abolish the right of petition.

—39 percent believed that a person who refuses to testify against himself should "either be made to talk or severely punished."

The Purdue report noted: "The education of these young people missed the whole point of the Bill of Rights. These rights are intended to protect every individual against arbitrary and capricious judgment of government officials. Any discrimination against individuals is the entering wedge of ultimate tyranny."

Another study, covering 1,000 University of California students, indicated that 56 percent of the students would deny some accused persons the right to confront their accusers and a similar number would allow some persons to be tried twice for the same offense.

Shocking, you say? But how do you feel our rights should be interpreted today?

To test your knowledge and appreciation of the Bill of Rights, here are 10 questions devised after consultation with a panel of constitutional experts headed by Professor Alexander Brooks of the Rutgers University Law School and Professor Thomas I. Emerson of the Yale University Law School.

To answer the questions, check either "Yes" or "No."

Scenes from his latest film, "The Pink Panther," reveal that David Niven's up to his old acting magic again. His costar is Claudia Cardinale.

EXPECT THE UNEXPECTED

A frugal spendthrift, a carefree worrier—these are a few of the contradictions that make up this blithe spirit

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

Clark Gable and Charles Laughton—which happened to be sailing alongside at the time.

By another coincidence, actor Robert Montgomery was visiting the ship that day. As a result of a friendship struck up that morning—and Niven's acute need for money—Montgomery talked him into a screen test at MGM.

Soon he appeared in picture after picture—always dressed in sandals, serape, and sombrero. "It seems they were making nothing but Westerns, and my accent was so British, they always cast me as a Mexican—without lines." And there he remained until Sam Goldwyn put him under contract the following year at $65 a week.

Niven was so elated at this stupendous salary that he rushed to the nearest automobile dealer to buy a new convertible—on time. When he drove it into the studio lot an hour later, the gateman told him that Mr. Goldwyn wanted to see him right away. "He told me I was starting my 12-week layoff period," Niven remembered. The car went back to the showroom, and Niven continued to ride streetcars and buses for another three months!

Until he rejoined the British Army in 1939 (unlike other stars, Niven received no studio pay while serving his country), he had appeared in 23 films and gradually established himself as an actor and a screen favorite. After six and a half years of service, he returned, but to his sorrow, Goldwyn insisted on taking up his contract where it had left off—with five more years to go!

Niven wasn't happy about his roles or his salary. One day he stormed into Goldwyn's office and demanded to be released from his contract. As he recalled later, "I believed my own publicity—that I was God's gift to Hollywood. But I must say I was a bit disturbed when Mr. Goldwyn gave in so easily. Still, I was pleased to have my freedom—until I found out that other studios weren't exactly breaking their necks for my services."

Working on the theory that when things are at their worst, it's time to do something spectacular, he took his wife Hjordis and their children, David and Jamie, to Barbados for a pleasant vacation, which drained his bank account to the last cent.

Fortunately, Otto Preminger offered Niven one of the leads in "The Moon Is Blue," which turned out to be a huge success, critically as well as financially. The career problems of David Niven—who had taken a small salary against a percentage of the picture—were over.

While David's professional life, in spite of setbacks, sounds like a romp, his private life has been touched by almost constant tragedy. David's father, William Graham Niven, was killed at 25 in the Dardanelles during World War I, when David was barely five. His mother, who was French, died when he was 18. He also lost one brother.

His first wife, the former Primula Rollo, was killed in California in 1946 during a parlor game at a friend's house, when she opened a wrong door and fell down the cellar stairs. David was left with the care of two sons—David, now 19, who is learning the legal aspects of the talent-agency business in Rome, and Jamie, 16, who attends school in Lausanne, Switzerland.

DAVID MET his second wife quite by chance. In 1948, a Swedish model, Hjordis Tersmeden, was flying from New York to Stockholm. She was temporarily stranded in London because of fog. On the plane, Hjordis met a friend of David's who asked if she would mind stopping at the studio with him so he could say hello to David. "She was sitting in my chair when I saw her," David recalled. "The picture had gone over schedule, and I was tired and upset that day, so I told the assistant director to get her out."

Either his anger wasn't very convincing, or it blew over fast when he took a closer look at the gorgeous blonde who had dispossessed him. He promptly reversed his point of view—and they were married a week later.

It shouldn't be surprising that David Niven would make a relatively quick decision on his choice of a mate when he sometimes debates for half an hour on what kind of hors d'oeuvre to select, or spends a week of sleepless nights before he decides what model car to order. It is only further proof that David has rightfully earned his reputation as Hollywood's most contradictory and unpredictable actor!

It is 3:16, and tragedy is etched in Ruhl's face. Mary Lou has crashed to concrete floor before his eyes.

"I'm Going Back on the Trapeze!"

He looked at me as if I were just another fresh brat, but some of the want inside of me must have reflected on my face because he waved me up. I was unsure and uncoördinated on the rigging—but not afraid. I hated to come down because I thought I'd never soar so high again. But another performer was waiting below for me.

"Would you like to be an aerialist?" he asked. "Before you answer, remember, you must be willing to accept rigid discipline and hard work."

I didn't hesitate. This was Willie Hustrei talking to me, a member of a world-renowned aerialist family and a master teacher. Soon I was living with his mother in California. The family had aerial rigging in their back yard, and for months they schooled me. Thanks to the Hustreis' patience, I was able to join Willie in a duo act. It seemed as if everything I ever wanted was mine now. Then after one of our performances, Willie slid gracefully down from the high wire and began to walk off. Suddenly he slumped to the sawdust and died of a heart attack.

MY FIRST THOUGHT was that part of me had died, too. But circus people have taught me wise things. One is that a teacher like Willie never dies: instead he goes on in his pupils' performances. Like generations of circus people before him, Willie had passed on some of his great ability. So I went back to the kind Hustrei family and they helped me prepare a solo act.

Willie had once told me: "If you do things right, you will always be safe." But at the Madison show I had not done something right. And I had no idea what it was. All I could tell people was that "I goofed." I knew that was not enough for a professional. Somebody would have to fill in the blank for me before I could go back up—if I could go back up.

I looked at the crucifix and said another prayer. I knew now that my mother and father were anxiously at my side and had been for days. As I became better, they told me they were caring for Thunder and also that I had been in a coma when Mother Rose gave me the cross; apparently my mother described the scene to me when I was semiconscious, and it became so meaningful to me that it had become like a real experience.

I learned, too, that I had a fractured shoulder and broken ribs and pelvis. I had slid heels-first across the concrete and collided with the grandstand. (I never work with a net. Like many aerialists, I don't think they help much—in my fall, for instance, momentum catapulted me far beyond the reach of any net.) My head had whiplashed back on the hard floor and had been severely fractured. For days I had been near death, and even now it was uncertain how fully I would recover. For a while that thought haunted me. Then one day I told my mother:

"I'm going to get well. I'm going back up!"

But my first attempts to move frightened me. My limbs seemed detached from my body. And I still couldn't form sentences well, much less lengthy thoughts. I lay in bed exhausted by my first efforts, staring from crucifix to ceiling to wall. Then I remembered something else Willie had said when we first stepped into the Hustreis' yard to begin my long training:

"Have faith in God and confidence in people, and you don't have to be afraid."

I fell Feb. 15. It was April before I could walk much. Meanwhile, I was deluged with letters from people telling of their prayers for me. Technicians from the movie "Jumbo," in which I had worked, wrote to me; so did show-business and circus people I'd never met. A little girl in Germany sent "the trapeze lady" a colored drawing of flowers and explained: "I do not have much money to send you flowers, so I have drawn these for you."

"Have confidence in people . . ." Willie had said.

One day a young teacher from the University of Wisconsin visited my hospital room. She taught calisthenics and asked me about some points in tumbling. I tried to explain but didn't do too well. Finally, I almost leaped across the bed—"Oh, if I could only show you what I mean!"

Right then I knew I could show her. My body had healed; I could feel its strength and limberness as I stood before her. But I knew, too, that excitement or strain could cause irreparable damage to my brain. I must hold myself back for months more. More patience, more prayer.

Now, however, I had the courage to look for the answer to my "goof." I turned to a good friend, Larry Ruhl. He and a long-time friend of mine, Sandy Winters, form the act of "Michele & Michael," a top aerial duo who sometimes perform from helicopters. At the time of my accident, Larry had been below controlling the lines to my rig. Nobody had been closer or was more expert. Larry was now on the road, but he wrote immediately to my query.

"Remember the morning of the accident?" Larry said. "Sandy, you, and I had breakfast. Then you and I went over to inspect your new rigging. I told you it would be a good idea to work out on it because you had a new crane bar with ball-bearing hangers. This naturally would increase the tempo of your swing. You agreed and worked out, but you didn't try a roll out.

"Mary Lou, I'll never forget that afternoon. I was holding your cable and looking up. The moment you started the dislocation I knew it would be impossible to hang on. I couldn't look—then I ran to you.

"The saddest thing I ever did in my life was to return to the arena and take down your trapeze. When I put it away, I wondered if you would ever use it again. Now I know you will. A real performer doesn't give up because of a buster, and you're a real performer in every sense of the word.

"And believe me, you didn't 'goof.' The unexpected physical force that built up in those ball-bearing hangers was just too much for any performer to handle."

So now the tormenting blank spot had been filled in.

ABOUT THIS TIME I began collaborating on this story. In interviews before, I had been confused. I would stammer, repeat, forget. But as I worked on this article, I came to realize that was no longer true. All the fragments fitted together again and I could translate thoughts into words. What a wonderful discovery that simple thing is! I guess that was one of the tests because three months after the fall, my doctor said: "You can go home Sunday. You need more rest, but you can get that with your parents."

And Bill Kay, the circus producer, called from his headquarters in Sarasota, Fla., and said: "Mary Lou, we're opening in Eau Claire in July. We want you on the program if you can make it." I told Bill I didn't know about that. "Well," he said, "if not Eau Claire, then some other town soon after. We're waiting for you."

I packed all the wonderful letters and said goodbye to the many people in Madison who had helped me. One of the last things I did was untie the crucifix that I had turned to so often. It had been part of Mother Rose's own habit, and I felt it must have special meaning to her, as it did to me. When I offered to return it, though, she said:

"It isn't mine now. It belongs to you."

It did, too. Just as Willie said: ". . . have faith in God, and you don't have to be afraid."

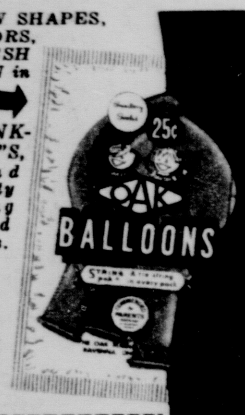

I don't know how long it will be before I hear the announcer introducing "The Hollywood Skyrocket." But it will be soon. Meanwhile, old lessons have taken on new importance for me.

WITH DAVID NIVEN,

A FEW DAYS before David Niven finished his starring part in United Artists' "The Pink Panther," he was interviewed on an Italian television show.

Trying to be complimentary, the interviewer introduced David as "one of the world's 10 best-dressed men." To the interviewer's surprise—and the shock of the television audience—David ripped off his coat, pulled his shirt out of his trousers, and pointed at the cut-off part of his shirt tail.

"I needed the material to redo the worn-out shirt collar and cuffs," Niven said, then explained that his reputation as one of the best-dressed men is based solely on the 38 suits he wore in "Around the World in 80 Days."

This kind of frugality could more easily be accredited to a poverty-stricken actor, or one known for his tightness with a dollar. David is neither. One of movieland's richest men and one-third owner of the highly successful Four Star Television Company, he drives a Bentley, has servant-staffed mansions in Palm Springs, Calif., St. Jean on the French Riviera, and in Château d'Oex, Switzerland. He spends money on parties and presents as if he printed it.

Yet the Italian incident shows why David is considered filmdom's most unpredictable actor.

It is typical of the man who has starred in more than 100 films that he worries himself sick the first day he is out of work for fear that he may never get another job! It is typical, too, that when filming "Around the World in 80 Days," he was terrified by the thought of ascending in an ultrasafe balloon—but on treacherous Alpine slopes he schusses and slaloms with the most daring of skiers.

Long before he was an actor wealthy enough to indulge his eccentricities, David Niven was known as a man who could be expected to do the unexpected.

Born in Kirriemuir, Scotland, 53 years ago, Niven progressed through regular British prep schools and took the entrance examination for the Royal Navy when he was 17. According to his own recollection, "When the Navy added up my score, they suggested I try for the Army, so off I went to Sandhurst, where I was commissioned at 19."

David's idea of discipline wasn't generally accepted in His Majesty's armed forces. There was the time in Malta when he rebelled against the heavy, regulation steel helmet by asking a London toyshop for an imitation helmet made of papier-mâché. The third time he wore it at a dress parade, a cloudburst struck and the paper hat drooped over his eyes like an uncooked pizza pie. Niven was confined to quarters for one week.

He was 25 when he quit the service, and the Army was not upset. With the first shot of World War II, however, Niven left a promising Hollywood career to return to Britain and fight for home and country. "As a British subject, I felt it was the thing to do," he said simply.

It is also typical of the man who didn't like military discipline to volunteer for the Phantom Commandos, who were charged with some of the most dangerous raids on continental Europe long before D-Day. He also rose from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel.

There are various romantic accounts on how he came to the United States in the first place. Here's Niven's simple, unvarnished version: "The truth is that I met Barbara Hutton at a party in London, and she asked me to visit her in New York if I ever had time. I decided to take the time."

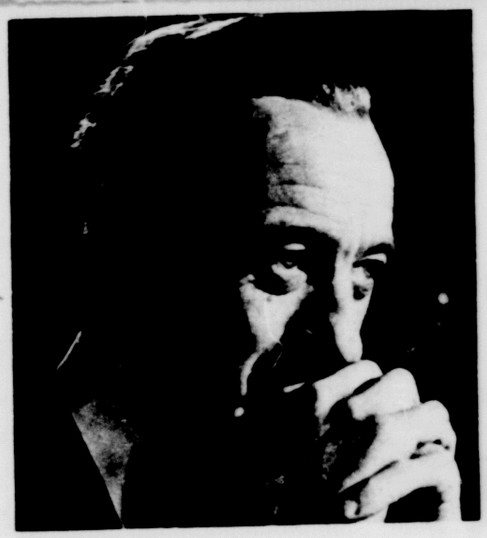

DAVID ARRIVED in the United States in the 1930s and moved into the Waldorf-Astoria, where the price of the room quickly exhausted his funds. He didn't have enough cash to take care of a laundry bill but worked it out in typical Niven fashion—by borrowing a Rolls-Royce from a friend and using it to deliver bundles of Chinese laundry door-to-door until his debt was paid.

Subsequently, he accepted an invitation to visit some friends in Santa Barbara, Calif., where he met some English Navy officers on a goodwill tour of Pacific coast ports. They invited him to a party on board H.M.S. Norfolk. The party got somewhat out of hand, and David found himself at sea at 4 in the morning. As a gag, British sailors put David aboard the Bounty—the one MGM had built for

Scenes from his latest film, "The Pink Panther," reveal that David Niven's up to his old acting magic again. His costar is Claudia Cardinale.

Clark Gable and Charles Laughton—which happened to be sailing alongside at the time.

By another coincidence, actor Robert Montgomery was visiting the ship that day. As a result of a friendship struck up that morning—and Niven's acute need for money—Montgomery talked him into a screen test at MGM.

Soon he appeared in picture after picture—always dressed in sandals, serape, and sombrero. "It seems they were making nothing but Westerns, and my accent was so British, they always cast me as a Mexican—without lines." And there he remained until Sam Goldwyn put him under contract the following year at $65 a week.

Niven was so elated at this stupendous salary that he rushed to the nearest automobile dealer to buy a new convertible—on time. When he drove it into the studio lot an hour later, the gateman told him that Mr. Goldwyn wanted to see him right away. "He told me I was starting my 12-week layoff period," Niven remembered. The car went back to the showroom, and Niven continued to ride streetcars and buses for another three months!

Until he rejoined the British Army in 1939 (unlike other stars, Niven received no studio pay while serving his country), he had appeared in 23 films and gradually established himself as an actor and a screen favorite. After six and a half years of service, he returned, but to his sorrow, Goldwyn insisted on taking up his contract where it had left off—with five more years to go!

Niven wasn't happy about his roles or his salary. One day he stormed into Goldwyn's office and demanded to be released from his contract. As he recalled later, "I believed my own publicity—that I was God's gift to Hollywood. But I must say I was a bit disturbed when Mr. Goldwyn gave in so easily. Still, I was pleased to have my freedom—until I found out that other studios weren't exactly breaking their necks for my services."

Working on the theory that when things are at their worst, it's time to do something spectacular, he took his wife Hjordis and their children, David and Jamie, to Barbados for a pleasant vacation, which drained his bank account to the last cent.

Fortunately, Otto Preminger offered Niven one of the leads in "The Moon Is Blue," which turned out to be a huge success, critically as well as financially. The career problems of David Niven—who had taken a small salary against a percentage of the picture—were over.

While David's professional life, in spite of setbacks, sounds like a romp, his private life has been touched by almost constant tragedy. David's father, William Graham Niven, was killed at 25 in the Dardanelles during World War I, when David was barely five. His mother, who was French, died when he was 18. He also lost one brother.

His first wife, the former Primula Rollo, was killed in California in 1946 during a parlor game at a friend's house, when she opened a wrong door and fell down the cellar stairs. David was left with the care of two sons—David, now 19, who is learning the legal aspects of the talent-agency business in Rome, and Jamie, 16, who attends school in Lausanne, Switzerland.

DAVID MET his second wife quite by chance. In 1948, a Swedish model, Hjordis Tersmeden, was flying from New York to Stockholm. She was temporarily stranded in London because of fog. On the plane, Hjordis met a friend of David's who asked if she would mind stopping at the studio with him so he could say hello to David. "She was sitting in my chair when I saw her," David recalled. "The picture had gone over schedule, and I was tired and upset that day, so I told the assistant director to get her out."

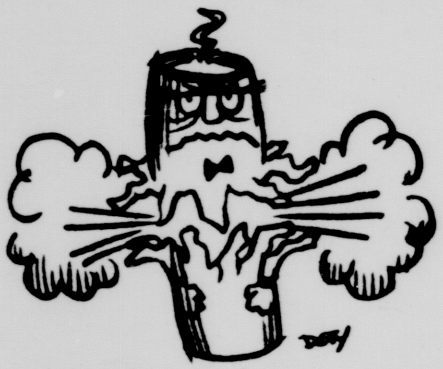

Either his anger wasn't very convincing, or it blew over fast when he took a closer look at the gorgeous blonde who had dispossessed him. He promptly reversed his point of view—and they were married a week later.

It shouldn't be surprising that David Niven would make a relatively quick decision on his choice of a mate when he sometimes debates for half an hour on what kind of hors d'oeuvre to select, or spends a week of sleepless nights before he decides what model car to order. It is only further proof that David has rightfully earned his reputation as Hollywood's most contradictory and unpredictable actor!

A middle-aged but obviously vigorous gentleman saw a group of teen-agers idling in the shade of a tree. He immediately launched into a lecture on the poor physical condition of today's youth and the need for a more strenuous life.

"Why, look at me," he said. "In top health at 55—never had a day's illness. Hard work, simple food, no late hours. For 30 years I was in bed at 9, up at 5, worked until noon, then a Spartan lunch, and back to work . . ."

KILLER!

(OF FLIES AND MOSQUITOES, THAT IS)

There are over 275,000 insects in every back yard . . . walking, flying, leaping, swimming, boring. They're buzzing, crawling, stinging, biting, eating your barbecued hamburger, drowning in your iced tea, taking the fun out of outdoor living.

And you?

Well, you can swat, swear, suffer . . . hide indoors

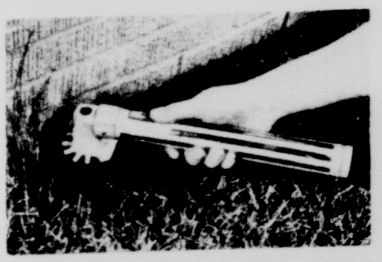

Or . . . use a BVI INSECT FOGGER. Takes but a minute—your outdoor living area remains bug-free for hours.

Just fill the container of the BVI INSECT FOGGER with ordinary oil-based insecticide. When you pull the trigger, a built-in electric pump forces insecticide through the atomizing nozzle into a heated fog-producing chamber. The heat vaporizes the insecticide and a thick fog surges from the end of the barrel. As the fog spreads through the air and rolls over the ground, it kills insects on contact! You can occupy the fogged areas immediately, but the insect-killing effect lasts for many hours. The barrel is easily detachable, converting unit into an effective sprayer for applying water-base garden sprays, weed killers and similar liquids. Just $34.95 wherever garden products are sold.

WITH DAVID NIVEN,

A FEW DAYS before David Niven finished his starring part in United Artists' "The Pink Panther," he was interviewed on an Italian television show.

Trying to be complimentary, the interviewer introduced David as "one of the world's 10 best-dressed men." To the interviewer's surprise—and the shock of the television audience—David ripped off his coat, pulled his shirt out of his trousers, and pointed at the cut-off part of his shirt tail.

"I needed the material to redo the worn-out shirt collar and cuffs," Niven said, then explained that his reputation as one of the best-dressed men is based solely on the 38 suits he wore in "Around the World in 80 Days."

This kind of frugality could more easily be accredited to a poverty-stricken actor, or one known for his tightness with a dollar. David is neither. One of movieland's richest men and one-third owner of the highly successful Four Star Television Company, he drives a Bentley, has servant-staffed mansions in Palm Springs, Calif., St. Jean on the French Riviera, and in Château d'Oex, Switzerland. He spends money on parties and presents as if he printed it.

Yet the Italian incident shows why David is considered filmdom's most unpredictable actor.

It is typical of the man who has starred in more than 100 films that he worries himself sick the first day he is out of work for fear that he may never get another job! It is typical, too, that when filming "Around the World in 80 Days," he was terrified by the thought of ascending in an ultrasafe balloon—but on treacherous Alpine slopes he schusses and slaloms with the most daring of skiers.

Long before he was an actor wealthy enough to indulge his eccentricities, David Niven was known as a man who could be expected to do the unexpected.

Born in Kirriemuir, Scotland, 53 years ago, Niven progressed through regular British prep schools and took the entrance examination for the Royal Navy when he was 17. According to his own recollection, "When the Navy added up my score, they suggested I try for the Army, so off I went to Sandhurst, where I was commissioned at 19."

David's idea of discipline wasn't generally accepted in His Majesty's armed forces. There was the time in Malta when he rebelled against the heavy, regulation steel helmet by asking a London toyshop for an imitation helmet made of papier-mâché. The third time he wore it at a dress parade, a cloudburst struck and the paper hat drooped over his eyes like an uncooked pizza pie. Niven was confined to quarters for one week.

He was 25 when he quit the service, and the Army was not upset. With the first shot of World War II, however, Niven left a promising Hollywood career to return to Britain and fight for home and country. "As a British subject, I felt it was the thing to do," he said simply.

It is also typical of the man who didn't like military discipline to volunteer for the Phantom Commandos, who were charged with some of the most dangerous raids on continental Europe long before D-Day. He also rose from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel.

There are various romantic accounts on how he came to the United States in the first place. Here's Niven's simple, unvarnished version: "The truth is that I met Barbara Hutton at a party in London, and she asked me to visit her in New York if I ever had time. I decided to take the time."

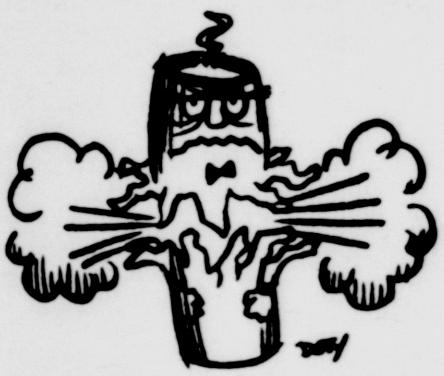

DAVID ARRIVED in the United States in the 1930s and moved into the Waldorf-Astoria, where the price of the room quickly exhausted his funds. He didn't have enough cash to take care of a laundry bill but worked it out in typical Niven fashion—by borrowing a Rolls-Royce from a friend and using it to deliver bundles of Chinese laundry door-to-door until his debt was paid.

Subsequently, he accepted an invitation to visit some friends in Santa Barbara, Calif., where he met some English Navy officers on a goodwill tour of Pacific coast ports. They invited him to a party on board H.M.S. Norfolk. The party got somewhat out of hand, and David found himself at sea at 4 in the morning. As a gag, British sailors put David aboard the Bounty—the one MGM had built for

Who Needs the Fourth of July?

No pyrotechnical display
Can equal Father any day
I use his new shaver to clip the poodle
Or mash a fender which costs a boodle;
Or when Rover varies stodgy fare
By sampling filet of mailman, rare;
Or when "tomcat Sam," a feline wag,
Has her kittens in Pop's bowling bag—
Then come the explosions, loud and gay!
It's better than fireworks any day!

Two Hollywood gossips were discussing an oft-married starlet sitting at a nearby restaurant table.

"Well," said one, "you've got to give her credit—she's really a wonderful little housekeeper."

"She is?" the other exclaimed. "I never heard that."

"Oh, yes," the gossip replied. "Been divorced three times and kept the house each time.—Joan Stevenson

A middle-aged but obviously vigorous gentleman saw a group of teen-agers idling in the shade of a tree. He immediately launched into a lecture on the poor physical condition of today's youth and the need for a more strenuous life.

"Why, look at me," he said. "In top health at 55—never had a day's illness. Hard work, simple food, no late hours. For 30 years I was in bed at 9, up at 5, worked until noon, then a Spartan lunch, and back to work . . ."

"Say," asked one teen-ager, "what did they send you up for?"

KILLER!

(OF FLIES AND MOSQUITOES, THAT IS)

There are over 275,000 insects in every back yard . . . walking, flying, leaping, swimming, boring. They're buzzing, crawling, stinging, biting, eating your barbecued hamburger, drowning in your iced tea, taking the fun out of outdoor living.

And you?

use a BVI INSECT FOGGER. Takes but a minute—your outdoor living area remains bug-free for hours.

Just fill the container of the BVI INSECT FOGGER with ordinary oil-based insecticide. When you pull the trigger, a built-in electric pump forces insecticide through the atomizing nozzle into a heated fog-producing chamber. The heat vaporizes the insecticide and a thick fog surges from the end of the barrel. As the fog spreads through the air and rolls over the ground, it kills insects on contact! You can occupy the fogged areas immediately, but the insect-killing effect lasts for many hours. The barrel is easily detachable, converting unit into an effective sprayer for applying water-base garden sprays, weed killers and similar liquids. Just $3.95* wherever garden products are sold.
